A trocha or strong line has been estab-lished across the island from Havana to Batabano. Railroad cars for the movement of troops have been armor clad and the Spanish army now has methods of moving bodies of men, concentrating strong forces and pushing the war against the enemy which were lacking in the be-finning. It required time to make these preparations, and without them effective work could not be done against the rebels.

What Weyler Will Do. Now that the strength of the enemy and his elusive ways are appreciated by the Spanish, and his general plan of opera-tions understood General Weyler need not fight in the dark, as Campos did for a time, but may be expected to dispose his superior forces in a way that will crush the enemy and put an end to the army of liberation. These are the possibilities.

The short time that remains before the and the mysterious way in which the enemy grows stronger after every defeat may make the task of putting him down difficult. However, all loyal Spaniards look to General Weyler for great things and predict their accomplishment. Americans and others here who desire peace here and predict their accomplishment. Americans and others here who desire peace before calamity engulfs all business hope that Weyler will follow the methods of modern warfare, treat prisoners properly, prevent wholesale arrests of suspected citizens and give the enemy a chance to care for his wounded. They hope to see the war fought in the field and not in towns whose citizens have not risen, and hope that Spain will fight armed men only, and that those who sympathize with their race, but remain quiet will not be declared traitors and spies.

What Fortifications Mean.

What Fortifications Mean.

Spain is fortifying Havana for any nergency that may arise. Recently four coast defense guns of about sixty tons each arrived from Spain. They are now being moved along temporary tracks to the Santa Clara battery, the most modern of Havana's fortifications. This battery is built on a rocky hill between the city and the sea. It is about one mile west of Morro castle. It commands the approach of vessels from the north and west, while of vessels from the north and west, while a battery beyond Morro does similar service toward the east. Neither of these batteries commands the land approach or can even point a gun toward the city itself. Of all of Havana's forts these are the only ones containing modern guns. The manner in which they are being strengthened shows that Spain is preparing for others than the insurgents.

When the news of the action of the committee on foreign affairs of the United States senate reached here one of the most prominent political leaders here said and tell them what guns we are unloading and placing in our forts." A Glance at the Guns.

A Glance at the Guns.

This gentleman meant no threat. He believed that the surest way to prevent foreign war is to make a show of strength. A glance at some of the big guns around Havana is disappointing if one looks for strength. Most of the guns are half a century old; some are still more ancient. For decorative purposes they are equal to those on Castle William and some at Forts Wadsworth and Hamilton, New York harbor. For active service they are practically worthless. The few modern guns here would be effective if well manned. As to what the Spanish gunners would do with them I can make no guess. would do with them I can make no guess.
The Chinese had good guns on their ships and in their forts, but Japan showed that there is more in men behind guns than in the guns themselves.

EVIDENCE THAT HE KILLED PEARL BRYAN

Rapidly Coming to Light-Miss Hollingsworth Trying To Shield Jackson.

Cincinnati, O., February 10.—Yesterday the detectives in the Fort Thomas murder case took the bloody coat found in a catch basin to the jail and tried it on Walling and Jackson. Jackson said it was his property. He claimed that he put it in a closet on January 6th in his room at the bording house, and that he room at the bording house, and that he has not had it in his hands since. He put it on, and the negro, Allen Johnson, said it looked like the coat Jackson had on the night he took Pearl Bryan away in a cab. The cap found was shown to Walling, and he said it was his, but that Jackson used to wear it. It was next Jackson used to wear it. It was next taken to Jackson, who put it on and it adjusted itself to him nicely. Inquiries were made yesterday at all the toll gates and revealed some interesting facts. Two separate witnesses testified to the fact that a cab was driven rapidly toward the scene of the murder about 10 o'clock Friday and back at the same breakneck pace after 2 o'clock Saturday morning, going toward Fort Thomas. Searching parties made a thorough search Searching parties made a thorough seatch of the sand bar at Dayton yesterday in hopes of finding the missing head. Both prisoners will fight against being taken to Kentucky for trial, but it is understood requisition will be issued by Governor Bradley within the next few days.

Indianapolis, Ind., Februray 10.—Facts that cast a serious doubt upon the story of Lula May Hollingsworth, who says that Pearl Bryan committed suicide, developed here yesterday, and as a result it is being claimed that the girl is attempt-ing to Shield Jackson, and that she did not see Pearl Bryan at the union station not see Pearl Bryan at the union station on January 28th during the time that she stopped over here to board a Cincinnati train. She Makes Another Confession. Another confession was wrung from Lulu May Hollingsworth late tonight by the police superintendent, in which she says she, herself, officiated at the criminal operation which Pearl Bryan underwent, and Miss Bryan came from Cincinnati here for that purpose, accompanied by Walling, and returned to that city by the first train. Two days later Miss Hollingsworth received a letter from Jackson saying that Pearl was very sick and within a day or two afterwards there was a scc-ond letter saying that she had died in his room and that he and a negro took the body to the Kentucky side of the river, where it was beheaded with a butcher's cleaver, after which he tossed the head into the river as he crossed the suspension bridge, on his return to Cincinnati. Mis. Hollingsworth claims that the first letter from Jackson she burned Sunday night when the officers came to arrest her and that the second was placed with an attorney with instructions not to make public its contents unless it becomes necessary as eyidence in relief of Jackson and Waj-

WORKING THE RESERVE. How the Gold Is Drawn Out with Legal Tender.

New York, February 10 .- The deposits of gold in the subtreasury today in payment for bonds were $8,749,524. In addition, con-siderable gold was deposited for examination. The report that the subtreasury had rejected gold arose in this way: For some time past a bullion dealer in Wall street has been turning in legal tenders for gold and selling the gold at a premium. Today he presented $800,000 legal tenders and withdrew the same amount of gold. Five hundred thousand dollars in gold was immediately turned into the bond department. On the second transaction of $300,600 he secured the gold in bags, and gave it to the clerks of the firms who had subscribed for the new 4s, and who had accompanied him to the sub-

Jordan objected to having the subtreas ury used as an annex to a bullion broker's office. The dealers in question made charges of favoritism against Mr. Jordan, but the point of his argument lies in the fact that he did not care to cart the gold from the subtreasury and then bring it

Frobably such a course would reduce the insignificant profit he secures by belling government gold withdrawn through the agency of legal tenders.

WHERE DIVISION IS INEVITABLE

The Senate Tariff Bill and Silver Substitute Involved.

ONE MUST GO TO DEFEAT Free Coinage People Fear Tariff Will Win Out.

WHAT EITHER OF THESE RESULTS MAY MEAN A Talk with Mr. James Swann on Bonds-Believes They Came at the Right Time.

Washington, February 10 .- (Special.)-The enate is in very much of a tangle over the silver-tariff bul. The republican leaders fear a vote just at present indicating the ultimate defeat of the tariff bill and the democratis leaders fear defeat in their tactics to prevent the passage of the tariff bill. In consequence, both parties agreed today that the question should go over until tomorrow.

Both sides wanted time to consult and time to arrange and agree upon a programme of action. All sorts of claims are set forth tonight. The republican leaders have some hope of holding their men in line for the tariff alone. Then they are attempting to dicker with some of the democratic senators who are high tariff men as well as goldbugs. It is understood that the cuckoo element of the senate has proposed to aid the republicans in the passage of the bill provided they get the bond bill to the president without a free silver amendment. The only way this latter can be done, is for the silver republican senators to abandon their hope for silver after it becomes evident that there can be no silver legislation at this session. Judging however, from the circular signed by the western republican senators, it is not probable that any such deal can be effected. The bill as it now stands may be referred to the finance committee in order that both sides may gain time. There is all sorts of compromise talk. Both parties are badly divided on the silver question and there is much division among the democrats on the tariff.

One democratic senator told me today that the so-called emergency tariff bill was of no great importance and he saw no reason why the democrats should fight it. Another democratic statesmen said he was very much opposed to allowing the emergency tariff to pass. He believed it would have a tendency to weaken the fight for silver within the democratic party. In explaining this statement he said if the tariff bill went to the president he would send a ringing message to congress vetoing it. The result would be to arouse the country on this question again, and in doing so turn back the financial question to second place.

The silver democrats want to keep the silver question to the front. They are determined to force the issue, and if possible have free coinage a plank in the democratic platform. There is a similar feeling in the republican party, and this fight now on at both house and the senate means much in the genuine contest. It has been decided to vote on the silver bond bill in the house on next Thursday or Friday. General debate will run until Wednesday afternoon. Thursday will be devoted to debate under the five-minute rule, and the bill will be reported to the house for a final vote on Friday. Judge Crisp and Mr. Dingley will close the debate for the respective sides. What the vote will be is already known. No one expects the silver substitute to pass the house. Mr. Reed has that body too well under control. It is not probable that more than 110 votes will be cast for the substitute-debate cannot change them; therefore the debate which has been going on has been largely for the consumption of the constituents at home and for the people at large.

Both the speeches of Judge Crisp and Mr. Dingley are expected to be largely of a political nature for political effect upon the country. The only genuine argument that has been made in the debate was that of Towne of Minnesota, on Saturday, and that is acknowledged on all sides to be the greatest silver speech ever made in congress. Mr. Swann's Views. Among the many bidders for bonds who came over from New York for the opening of the bids was Mr. James Swann. Mr. Swann was one of the Stewart syndicate which was a fraction outbid by the Morgan cruwd.

Mr. Swann characterizes the issue as great success. "Contrary to the comment," he says, "the bids for this issue do not demonstrate that the private bond sale last year was an unwise act on the part of Mr. Cleveland. But for that act, this issue would not have been possible. Mr. Cleveland had but forty-eight hours then in which to act to save the country from a panic. Had , delayed, we would have been on the rocks. It is true the bonds were sold cheap. But the Morgan syndicate made no great amount upon them. They entered a contract to see that the gold reserve was maintained for a certain time and it cost them much money to do this. The situation was such that Mr. Cleveland had to act as he did. His act then made this issue possible and saved the credit of the country."

Mr. Swann new thinks congress sh provide for the coinage of the silver seign- | His Nomination Has Been Confirmed jorage, and that the treasury should pay out silver whenever possible, and hold the greenbacks. He then thinks congress should appoint a committee as a part of a commission to be appointed by the president, composed of experienced financiers, to draft a general financial b.ll, changing the present laws of the country and removing the government from the banking business. Mr. Swann is highly in favor o retiring the greenbacks. If that is done he thinks we can afford to coin and pu in eirculation a thousand million of silv

After a preamble quoting from the president's last annual message what is said in reference to that subject, the joint resolution provides that "as it appears there are no means of securing permanent peace to Cuba except by the recognition of its right to self-government, the good offices of the United States are earnestly recommended to the favorable consideration of the Span-further consideration was laid before the senate, and, on the suggestion of Mr. Gorman, Mr. Quay consented to let it go over until tomorrow.

On motion of Mr. Call the resolution as to the recognition of the belligerency in Cuba was made the special order after the urgent deficiency bill.

Mr. Thurston, republican, of Nebraska, made a personal explanation in reference to a bill introduced by him last Thursday providing a pension to the freedmen. He had stated, at the time, that he introduced the bill by request and that fact was noted on the bill. Nevertheless he found himself credited by the press of the country with the authorship and advofound himself credited by the press of the country with the authorship and advocacy of the measure. He was entitled to no such credit. It was a copy of a bill that had been introduced in the housa in the fitty-first congress and that had been prepared by a Virginian (Colonel Vaughan), who had been a soldier in the comfederacy and who was a democrat of the ultra Bourbon type. He (Mr. Thurston) believed that the bill had been framed with a just recognition of the great moral obligations which the government assumed when it called a prople from bondage not only to the privileges, but also to the responsibilities and duties of freemen. The bill, he said, was entitled to careful examination and he had introduced it in order that it might be brought to the attention of congress for future examination, deliberation and action.

A speech in relation to the Monroe doc-brught to the attention of congress for future examination, deliberation and action.

A speech in relation to the Monroe doctrine was made by Mr. Smith, democrat, of New Jersey. He declared himself opposed to the resolution effered by his colleague, Mr. Sewell, republican, of New Jersey, which declares the president's message inopportune; equally opposed to that reported to the committee on foreign relations by Mr. Davis, republican, of Mr. nesota, extending the application of the Monroe doctrine, and as having very little sympathy with the position assumed by Senator Wolcott, of Colorado. In his opinion there was no occasion for any action of any kind by the senate at this time. And he wound up his speech by a declaration that there was only one thing for which he would cheerfully give his vote, and that was a motion to adjourn.

Mr. Lindsay, democrat, of Kentucky, gave notice of an amendment to the house tariff bill—proposing to repeal the provision of the present tariff law which provides a duty of ½ of a cent per pound on all sugars above number 16 Dutch standard, and on all discolored sugars.

The remainder of the day was spent in the discussion of the foint resolution directing the secretary at agriculture to purchase and distribute seeds for the year 1896. A final vote was not reached, and after announcement of the death of Representative Crain the senate, at 3:10 o'clock, adjourned until tomorrow.

Senators Mills, Gallinger and Frye were appointed a committee to join the house committee on the funeral of Representative Crain.

HOUSE LOSES A MEMBER.

Mr. Hoar, who the other day voted against the confirmation of George H. Newman, of Fayetteville, Tenn., nominated to be Indian agent at Colville agency, Washington, and rejected on account of the violation of the home principle, by a tie vote of 25 to 25, moved to reconsider that action and the reconsideration was ordered. Resolutions Were Adopted on the Sudden Death of Mr. Crain.

Washington, February 10.—When the house resumed its session at 10:30 o'clock this morning, black draped, a bunch of hyacinths and roses on the desk occupied by the late Representative Crain, of Texas, announced to the half dozen members present the unexpected and sudden death of their associate, who last Thursday was among them taking part in the proceed-ings of the house.

Mr. Hainer, republican, of Nebraska, opposed the free coinage substitute of the senate to the tariff bill. He asked why this debate was carried on in face of the fact that they knew that the proposition in the bill could not be crystallized into law, and the debate tended only to increase the disquiet and unrest of the people. One of Mr. Hainer's most interested listeners was ex-Representative Bryan, his colleague in the fifty-second and fifty-third congresses, who occupied a seat just across

Mr. Skinner, populist, of Kansas, advocated the senate substitute for the reason that a great majority of the people desired free coinage of silver.

The house at 11:58 o'clock a. m., adjourned Saturday's session and two minutes later was called to order for the legiblative day of Monday. In view of the sad death which had been brought to the attention of the members, Mr. Dingley, republican, of Maine, asked and obtained unanimous consent for the following arrangement:

1. That tomorrow, Tuesday, from 12 to 5 o'clock be devoted to the consideration of business of the District of Columbia.

Robbed and Assaulted by Nine Negroes.

Nine negroes were afrested this morning charged with having committed a crime too flendish and diabolical in its details to even admit of an attempt at description. On the books each one of them is charged with criminal assault and highway robbery. The victim was a white woman, a woman of disrepute, but neverthe less a weak dependent creature and therefore deserving of the protection which the law should afford.

The crime was committed several nights ago, but the story was kept secret until the arrest of the men yesterday.

The unfortunate victim, whose name Bertha Brouthers, tells a story that is almost incredible. She said that on the night in question she went to a restaurant in Market street. When she left it five burly negroes rushed upon her, and takburly negroes rushed upon her, and taking her in their arms carried her into a dark alley in Anson street, near Market.
There they tore off her rings in such greedy haste that she begged them not

Death Follows a Boxing Bout.

Philadelphia, February 10.—Fred Schlechter, who sustained a fracture of the skull in a boxing bout on Saturday night with Harry Pluckfelder, an ex-policeman, died this morning. The men met in Schlechter's mattress factory in the presence of a score of spectators, and after the set-to. Schlechter went to his home unaided. Quite a correspondence has been going on between Manager Knowles and the owners of the franchise, and from what Knowles writes it is likely that he will keep out of last year's team Callahan, Wood, Norten and Horner, pitchers; Wilwood, Norten and Horner, pheners; Wil-son and Armstrong, catchers; McLade, who played third base last year, and Goode-nough and Friel outfielders. It may be, too, that Smith will be found at short stop, but there is some doubt about that.

Armstrong alternating at first base and behind the bat, while Knowles will go to the third base and McDade put at short. For Delehanty Knowles thinks he has a youngster that can outbat and outfield that bright graduate of the Southern League of last year. Friel and Goodenough will be joined in the outfield by a k.d who can pull them out of the clouds or scrape them out of the sand, and who has an eye that can place a swiftly flying pea to a nicety. There may be some trouber in retaining Horner, as Baltimore appears disposed to pull the string she has on that pitcher. Horner is willing to stay, but has two or three most inducing offers, besides which Hanlon offers for him.

The owners of the Atlanta franchise have given Knowles carte blanche to fill his team, holding, however, within the limits.

IT FELL SHORT

Of What the People Expected To Hear from Mr. Clarke.

HIS SPEECH IN MONTGOMERY

Tried To Show That Free Coinage Was Not to Workingmen's Advantage, but He Failed.

Montgomery, Ala., February 10 .- (Special.)-Hon, Richard H. Clarke spoke in the theater here tonight to a large tudience. It was announced that he would address the laboring men on the proposition that free coinage was not to their advantage, but he departed from his text, only devoting to them some five or six minutes out of the two hours and more which he consumed.

The balance of the speech was devoted to unsparing criticism of Captain Joseph F. Johnston, his opponent, for the demo cratic nomination as governor; to assailing, through sarcasm, the actions of the lemocratic state executive committee; to laudations of the national administration he omitted to include the present state administration—and to patting the last legislature on the back for passing a gold

That part of his speech which was de voted to the laboring man was predicated almost entirely on one of The Constitu-tion's Japan letters published last fall. He ndertook to show from the letter that while the manufacturers prospered in free silver Japan the working man got only twelve and a half cents a day wages and had to live on rice and seaweed.

Mr. Clarke spoke deliberately and grace fully, and while he was accorded the most polite attention and frequent applause, his speech failed to enthuse. Much was ex-pected of him. He did well, but he fell somewhat short of the high mark his admirers here had set for him. There was a great deal of "the big I and the little you" about his speech, and it is probable that very little advantage will be gained for him here as a result of his effort. Mr Clarke will speak in Selma tomorrow

Republican Meetings.

The republicans of Sumter county, Alabama, held their county convention Saturday and adopted a resolution indorsing Rev. I. and adopted a resolution indorsing Rev. 1. Dawson, a colored peacher of Greene county, as one of the delegates from the sixth district to the St. Louis convention. Dawson is said to be a supporter of Speaker Reed. The convention left the question of fusion to the state convention which meets here on April 28th and its delegates go to the convention without instructions on this

A Fatal Accident. A letter received here from Newton, Dale county, states that Mr. William Collins, an old and highly esteemed citizen of that county, living about four miles from Newton, fell from the front porch of his residence a few days ago, and struck his head resulting in a fracture of the skull which produced almost instant death.

SUDDEN DEATH AT GADSDEN.

Mr. Seaborn Jordon Dies of Heart Failure.

Gadsden, Ala., February 10.—(Special.)— Seaborn Jordon died suddenly at his nome, at 2 o'clock p. m. today. He had been in the front yard cultivating flowers and as he entered his wife's room to consult her he fell to the floor at her feet. Mrs Jordan supposed that it was only a faint-ing spell and summoned a neighbor's boy to assist her in getting him to bed. The boy came and when they reached him h was dead.

Mr. Jordon was a highly respected citizen of Gadsden and had many warm friends here. He was sixty-five years old, and leaves a wife and four children. He was in apparent good health and was very active for one of his age. It is thought that heart failure was the cause of his leath, although it was not known that he was afflicted with heart disease. His death removes one of the oldest citizens

Dead Bodies Attached.

Birmingham, Ala., February 19.-(Special.)-In the circuit court here a verdict has been rendered in the appeal case of Norman & Co. vs. J. C. Millar, carried up from the justice court of L. J. Haley, Norman & Co. attached the mummy bodles of a white man and a negro, which Miller had on exhibition. Norman & Co. claimed that Miller was indebted to them for rent. The bodies were those of two men who died on the gallows in this city for murders they had committed and which had been mummyized by Dr. Miller and afterwards sold to J. C. Miller, who is a redictine man. Justice Haley decided that the bodies were not property and were, therefore, not subject to levy. This decision is reversed by the court and the plaintiffs can collect the debt by levy on the property.

Johnston's Headquarters. Captain Johnston, the candidate on the free coinage platform for the nomination at the hands of the democratic party, and at the hands of the democratic party, and who stands the best chance of getting it when the convention meets in Montgomery in a couple of months, which means the same as the election, has established head-quarters at 1927½ First avenue in a most prominent and handy locality. Mr. George C. Whatley is secretary of the Johnston Club, and he will be at the headquarters at all times. A large banner will be hung out in a few days to apprise strangers in the city where the headquarters are and where any information can be received. The town is boiling over with politics and the name of Captain Johnston is almost the only one to be heard.

No I abor Ticket.

The Birmingham trades council, to which are affiliated the various labor organizations in the district, has decided not to agitate at the present moment the not to agitate at the present moment the forming of a labor party in Alabama and the placing of a ticket in the field for the county and legislative offices from this county at the election in August. The resolution to the effect that a labor party be formed was withdrawn and the council will watch the democrats, republicans and populists make their tickets and then decide on what they will do. It is more than likely that the populist ticket will be indorsed.

SCATTERING MONEY IN FLORIDA FOR MORTON.

He Is a Former Atlanta Negro Who Got a Government Position.

Jacksonville, Fla., February 10 .- (Special.) A somewhat unique feature of the fight now being made by republican presidential aspirants for Florida's vote at St. Louis is the fact that Allison's interests are in the hands of a man who enjoys a lucrative federal office by favor of Mr. Cleveland's secretary of the interior. The man who has charge of the Allison boom in Florida is J. A. Honeywell, a negro. Honeywell reached here from Washington a few days ago, with his pockets stuffed with Allison money. He found the field already worked by representatives of McKinley and Morton, but as soon as the negro republicans learned that a new coon, with a fresh roll of bills was in town they began to hedge, and now there are plenty of Allison shouters here-abouts, and will be so long as the money lasts Hoyenwell claims to be an employe of the bureau of immigration, and says his office pays $1,800 a year. He says Secretary Hoke Smith is a good friend of his, and that the office he holds was procured by the secretary. Honeywell was living in Atlanta when Mr. Smith entered the cabinet, and the latter secured the negro ar $800 position in the bureau of printing While in that position Honeywell attracted the attention of Allison, who induced Secretary Smith to secure the negro's proto a $1,800 position in the immigration bureau.

A few days ago Honeywell secured a in Florida, he was employed by Allison to come down here and look after the latter's interests. Honeywell does not seem to think there is any impropriety in an appointee of Secretary Smith's hiring himself to boom the candidacy of a stalwart republican like Allison. Honeywell gave a champagne supper to a lot of negroes last night. He left for Tampa this afternoon.

They Are Wasting Money. Allison's money, like Morton's, is being wasted. Seymour and Simms, who repre-sent Morton, came here and began a fight on Long, Eagan and Lee, the republican who are supposed to favor Mc-Allison's agent has done likewise. The result has been to embitter Long, Eagan and Lee, who will corarol the state convention, and neither Morton nor Allison will have even a reversionary interest in the Florida delegation.

It is hinted that the republican bosses have quietly whispered to their follower to get all the money possible out of the agents of Morton and Allison, and then give them the laugh. Three counties have acted so far; St. Johns and Madison sent solid McKinley delegations. In Franklin McKinley and Reed broke even.

Sheridan and Mrs. Graham were old sweethearts. Last Tuesday Sheridan, who was not known to Graham, came to the city and took board in the same house with the couple. Saturday morning the guilty pair disappeared. Graham found a note in his wife's room accusing him of cruelty and stating that she had gone away never to see him again. He quietly investigated and learning that she had boarded a boat at the wharf, took the train for Mobile to intercept her, but not until he saw the two get off the boat together did he suspect that there was another man in the case.

The injured husband dealt Sheridan a blow with his revolver. Sheridan fired twice and Graham shot him in the left shoulder. Graham was arrested and with Mrs.

Graham was taken to the police station. Sheridan was brought in later. Sheridan claims it was a case of sympa thy. The young wife was unhappy and he advised her to go away with him and get a divorce. Graham claims, however, that the two appeared on the boat's book as husband and wife.

REILLY RAISES A ROW.

WHO APPOINTED SHEEHAN?" HE ASKED.

For a Moment a Love Feast Was Turned Into a Very Dangerous Debate.

New York, February 10.-(Special.)-It was at the grand banquet which the braves of Tammany gave "Boss" Croker, at which forty-dollar plates were toted around to each guest. Senator Grady had been introduced, had presented the cup and had acknowledged, with bows, the applause and applause. Several other things had passed off with applause and appluase. But half dozen men had remained ominously silent while the other banqueters had applauded and applauded. He in whose honor the banquet was gived had arosen, and holding his menu in his hand started on his address.

"My friends," began Mr. Croker, "I thank you most sincerely for the great compliment of your presence here, and I am deeply conscious of the sincerity"-"Who selected John Sheehan to be the leader of Tammany hall?" came in thundering tones from one of the tables. The words were not written in a handwriting on the wall, but they struck consternation among the feasters. The crowd instinctive ly arose. Croker's manuscript fell from his hands and his face darkened—some said it blackened and that his eyes darted a searching look toward the quarters from whence came the question—"Who selected John Sheehan to be the leader of Tammany hall?" Croker, with the crowd, awaited boldly and defiantly the man who threw the bomb in the shape of that question. He had not long to wait. The man who had asked the question wanted an answer, but when he disclosed himself there was still another shock, for he was none other than "Honest John" Reilly, the fighting leader of the old Fourteenth when the district was famous for its democracy and its leader sat with the highest in councils held in the Wigwam. He was one of the same type of politician as Croker. They had been fastest of friends, but politics made Croker depose him and Croker never permitted friendship to interfere with poli-ties. Reilly rose in his place, and with his hands in his pockets looked with apparent calmness directly at Croker and re-'Who selected John C. Sheehan to be the leader of Tammany hall?" Just what the end would be no one could say. A nundred men were anxious to take Reilly away or make apology or explana tion for him, but there was a determination planation for his conduct on any plea of temporary excitement. The question was pointed and was delivered directly at the only man from whom Reiley would take an answer. Both men looked at each other an instant and then Croker, crumpling up the manuscript of his speech as he would a napkin and casting it from him on the table, assumed a more peaceful expression He did not deign to direct his reply to Reilly, but to the entire gathering, and Reilly sat down. Mr. Croker's Answer.

"I had nothing whatever to do with the selection of John C. Sheehan as leader of Tammany hall," began Mr. Croker in measured and emphatic tones. "I repeat so that all may understand that I had nothing to do with the selection of Mr. Sheehan. I did not dictate it. I did not counsel it. I did not suggest it. But I approved it as I always did everything that was done by Tammany hall. I approve it as every one who has faith in Tammany hall ought to approve everything that i does. That is the duty of every one.' Croker kept up his explanati matter for a half-hour. It was a good speech for Croker. The old fighting blood was taunting his opponents to come for-ward and ask him some other question. Reilly sat silently in his chair, but City Judge Fitzsimmons asked the again. He was not satisfied with Croker's Fitzsimmons's interruption made matters much worse and Sheehan, who was sit ting in hands' reach of him, could hardly contain himself. At one time he looked so uch as if he was Mayor Grant placed his hand upon the new leader's arm and whispered to him to overlook Fitzsimmons's question.

Mr. Quinn was for several years sheriff of Floyd county, and is a man who has been highly honored and respected as a public spirited citizen.

At the last municipal election he was elected treasurer of the city of Rome, which position he has filled most acceptably, and his dangerous illness is a source of deep regret to his many friends. He has a wife and several grown children.

Fruit Growers' Institute. There is to be a big gathering of the fruit growers of north Georgia at Adairs-ville, February 20th, at which time the North Georgia Fruit Growers' Institute will be organized.

Election Saturday. Saturday next the board will elect a new superintendent and Mr. Bridges will stand for re-election. There are many who say that if there is no crookedness, there are at least ample evidences of incompetency in the conduct of the office, but he has many friends who are outspoken in his support. The election is in the hands of the board and the result will depend largely on the result of the present investigation.

PARTICULARS OF THE TRAGEDY AT BLACKSBURG.

Two Men Arrested Charged with the Murder-Burial at Tunnell The officials of Blacksburg, S. C., are now making desperate efforts to secure the assassins of Charley Williams, of Tunnel

Hill. Ga., who met a tragic and foul death in that town last Thursday night. The citizens of Tunnel Hill and the towns adjacent are now watching the flowers placed upon Charley Williams's fresh-made grave Sunday afternoon fade and wither. Than Charley Williams there was no more popular man on the line of the Western and Atlantic railroad between Atlanta and Chattanooga and his tragic death has caused a general feeling of deep regret. For years he was depot agent at Tunnel Hill, and not only every agent at funnel fini, and not only every railroad man who passed that station, but every traveling man who stopped at Tun-nel Hill, came in contact with him. Cour-teous, kind and clever he made friends of all. He was genial and smart and with a literary turn did more than one good story for newspapers within his reach.

He once lived in Atlanta and here won friends by his gentle, manly manners. He has now in the city a brother and a married sister who were devoted to him. Mr. Williams had an aged mother at Big Shanty who loved her son devotedly and who is heart-broken over his tragic death. Besides these he leaves a wife and two or three children at Tunnel Hill. The mystery surrounding his brutal assassination now appears to be clearing away. It .eems, from what some of his friends say, that Williams had among his friends a man named Anderson, who once lived in Blacksburg, S. C. Anderson had a wife, from whom he had been divorced, but with whom he was madly in love. He confided, so the statements go, in Mr. Williams, who was his warm friend, Anderson having left South Carolina temporarily. Williams agreed to go to Blacksburg and see Mrs. Anderson to intercede for her husband. He did so and Anderson and his wife were again married. He once lived in Atlanta and here wor for her husband. He did so and Anderson and his wife were again married.

Trouble occurred again and another separation followed.
On Wednesday last, probably it might have been Tuesday, Williams passed through Atlanta for Blacksburg. He did not even tell his brother here where he was going and the first that brother knew, so it is said, that he was in Blacksburg was the message he received informing him of the assassination.
It is believed that Williams went to Blacksburg to again intercede for his friend.
If information from Blacksburg be ab-friend.

If Information from Blacksburg be absolutely correct Mrs. Anderson's character was not above reproach. In that town there was a man madly in love with her and who, it appears, was paying her house rent and otherwise providing for her. He was jealous and is charged with being one of two parties who assassinated Williams, the other party being her Both of the suspected parties are still at

Both of the suspected parties are stiff at large.

Williams's remains passed through Atlanta Saturday en route to Tunnel Hill, where they were laid to rest. Before the body left Blacksburg the coroner's jury rendered a verdict charging the assassination to M. R. Reese, with Dan Luckie as accessory.

Details of the Tragedy. A special from Columbia touching the murder says: Columbia, S. C., February 10.-The State will tomorrow publish the following spe cial from Blacksburg, S. C .: "On Thursday night two citizens returning to their boarding house stumbled over the dead body of a man. Investigation showed it to be Charles T. Williams, of Tunnel Hill, Ga. 'An alarm was raised and on searching the body three notes were found from Mrs. Anderson, a milliner of doubtful reputation. Mrs. Anderson has been twice murried to her present husband, having been divorced and then remarried about eight months ago. "From these notes it was found that Williams had been sent here by Mr. An-derson in the capacity of a peacemaker, and while acting in this capacity was mur dered. There is no direct proof as to who committed the murder, but Marlon R. Reese and Daniel Luckie are more than suspected. Reese is one of the richest men in town and has a wife in Greenville county with whom he has never lived, Luckie is a brother of Mrs. Anderson. Both have left for parts unknown.

"The evidence against Reese indicates that Reese is known to have been insanely jealous cf and almost wildly infatuated with Mrs. Anderson. On the night of the murder there was a party at the house of Marion Moore and on a piazza over-looking the residence of Reese was a Miss Farrington, who testified that she saw two people at the time of the shots run from where the dead man was found.

One of these parties she positively iden-tified as Reese and the other ran into the house of Mrs. Anderson and is supposed to have been Luckie, he being the brother of Mrs. Anderson, and it is said furnished a house and supported her, only a few doors from his own residence. Williams, in spite of the warning of Mrs. Anderson, called at her house about 9:30 o'clock that evening and was shot a short while after-

"The most intense excitement prevails here. Miss Farrington left for Charlotte, saying that she was afraid violence would be done of she remained here. The friends of the murdered man and the town council have employed counsel to prosecute Reese. Detectives have been employed and are now actively searching for Reese, who is supposed to be with friends near here. It is the universal opinion that he committed the murder. It is impossible to say how he will be treated if captured."

The Funeral.

A Dalton special says of the burial: "Dalton, Ga., February 10.—(Special.)— The funeral of Charles T. Williams, who The funeral of Charles T. Williams, who was assassinated in Blacksburg, S. C., last Thursday night, took place at Tunnel Hill yesterday afternoon. It was the biggest funeral Tunnel Hill ever saw. About thirty Masons and Knights of Pythias went from here. The Masons of Ringgold and Tunnel Hill and the people generally took part in the obsequies." BETWEEN TEXAS AND MEXICO.

Neither of the Countries Wants the Prize Fight-Troops at El Paso. El Paso, Texas. February 10.-Captain McDonald with his company of rangers, arrived from the Pan-Handle this morn ing and Captain Hughes has moved his men from Ysleta to this point. Every novement of the fighters is watched and there is no danger of the fight occurring in Texas. Adjutant General Mabrey reiterated this morning that he was here to keep the fight from occurring in any locality that Texas lays any claim to; that he recognized no neutral ground; that no battle ground can be used to pull off the fights unless in some other country. The opposition is taking on new courage with the presence of the rangers and tele-grams are flying thick and fast to cover every possible contingency. Through al this Dan Stuart, to all appearances, is perfeetly serene and meets all inquiries with the positive assurance that the fight will come off as scheduled. The report that the fight could take place upon the ranch of prominent American citizen, a few mile slow Juarez, Mexico, is a canard. The owner said this morning that it would cost him his property to consent to such a thing regardless of whether it took place

Governor Ahumada did not arrive in Juarez this morning and his friends there say that he is not expected. The manager of the former bull fights said this morning that as long as there was any talk of the prize fights, bull fights and gambling would be prohibited. He seemed disturbed over the idea that he could not secure a concession for bull fights while the visitors are in El Paso. Captain Lawler, the final stakeholder, will arrive tomorrow morn-ing. Austin, of New York, the temporary stakeholder, is to turn the money over this afternoon. The management wired Phil Dwyer, who is at New Orleans, this morning that he could assure his friends that the fights would take place as sched-

Senor Romero, the Mexican minister, says the prize fight will not take place in Mexico, and significance is lent to this declara-tion by the fact that the minister had just concluded a consultation with Secretary Olney this morning when he made it.

The Final Stakeholder Still Without Funds.

Houston, Tex., February 10.-Sam Austin, of New York, who has held the stake of $10,000 put up by the contestants in the Maher-Fitzsimmons fight, was expected to arrive here yesterday to turn over the money to Captain James Lawler, the final stakeholder, but has not yet put in an appearance. a new home for Atlanta, will have a meet-ing of that committee this week. There will be two plans for the memb of the committee to digest. The creation of the committee was a con-sequence of two resolutions introduced during the last session of the general council. One was by Mr. Inman, calling upon the mayor of Atlanta to appoint a special committee to confer with the Venable rBos. relative to securing apartments in the building they are now preparing to erect on the corner of Forsyth and Marietta streets for a council chamber and city hall offices—apartments sufficient for the accommodation of the city in every department and every respect. The other resolution was by Mr. Day, who recited in his paper the fact that Atlanta was spending $0.000 a year in rents and calling for the appointment of a ing the last session of the general council. that Atlanta was spending $5,000 a year in rents and calling for the appointment of a committee to purchase a lot and build a city hall. Between the two plans Atlanta is likely to get a new home and a good one.

Mr. Inman will issue a call tomorrow for the special committee.

He was a ribe scholar and a man of unusual mental endowments. His impromptu speech at Union Point seme years ago at a reunion of the Third Georgia regiment, of which he was a member, will long be remembered by his hearers as a most magnificent piece of oratory. J. A. Dodson, Southern's General Roadmaster, Moves Here.

Railway News.

The Southern is about to begin to move its general offices back from Washington to Atlanta. Captain John A. Dodson, the general roadmaster, will move his office pere next month, and Superintendent Lum. of bridges and trestles, will come here in

These changes have been decided or and Captain Dodson was here yesterday directing the arrangement of his new offiecs. Mr. Lum will probably be here today. He will remove his office force from Washington next week. Captain Dodson cannot move until the middle of March, and it will probably be March 20th before he gets settled down here.

These changes are rendered necessary by the nature of the work of those two officials. They have to be out on the line corstantly and with headquarters at Washington, which is not even on the Southern's line, they rarely ever see the inside of their offices. The higher officials of the company have come to the conclusion that it is essential to have these mer located in Atlanta, where they are in easy reach of any point on the road. In one night they can get out either way to the most distant division. But when they are in Washington it is a two days' ride to get to Greenville.

These changes are an acknowledgment of the advantages of Atlanta's superior location for general headquarters of the whole operating department. It is almost as necessary to have the traffic headquar ters here, and some day they are almost sure to come, for the executive officials recognize that it would be to the company's interest to locate the headquarters of the passenger and freight departments in the middle of the system rather than off it altogether.

The roadmaster and the superintendent of bridges will have their offices out at the old Richmond and Danville freight warehouse. These will be fitted up com-fortably at once. Captain Dodson was located there when he was superintenden of the Atlanta and Charlotte Air-Line vision. The roadmaster is always busy the first part of each month with his reports, and, therefore, cannot move his force until the clerical work is completed. For this reason Captain Dodson does not expect to move until after the midule of March. Both he and Mr. Lum are glad to get back his life. He started in as a clerk at Dan ville, Va. Then he worked in about every position on a train from brakeman up to conductor. After running on a train for several years he was made a division superintendent on the Richmond and Dan-ville with headquarters at Richmond. That was in 1883. In 1888 he accepted the position of division superintendent of Georgia, Carolina and Northern. In 1831 went back to the Richmond and Danville as division superintendent with head-quarters at Columbia, where he remained until he came to Atlanta in 1892. He is a native of North Carolina and while in Atlanta was president of the North Caroli-na Society. He has a great many friends here and will add to the strong representa-tion which the Southern already has in

Mr. Inman Elected a Director. Mr. Sam Inman has been elected a director of the Southern. The election was held in New York yesterday. There were two vacancies to be filled, caused by the resignations of General Samuel Thomas and Mr. Thomas F. Ryan. These two directors resigned by request of the United States court in South Carolina, where they bought some railway property, the sale of which the judge refused to confirm while Messrs. Rvan and Thomas remained officially connected with the Southern, as the court was afraid that competition would be defeated. General Thomas promised that he and his associate in the purchase would resign from the Southern as soon as they could manage to do so, stating that their purchase of the property was an individual transaction on their part, and was not in any way connected with the Southern.

Mr. Inman was chosen for his financial and business standing. Mr. George W. Maslin, of New York, was also elected director, but his election was temporary, as he intends to resign at an early date. In the directory of the Southern, Mr. In-

In the southwest the situation is not as bad, from my information, as the press reports would seem to indicate. At any rate, we find our earnings are improving and rates fairly well maintained. As to the stock market, I have nothing particular to say. I have not traded in stocks for at least three years, and consequently I do not keep much track of the stock market situation."

Two Receivers.

Springfield, Ill., February 10.-Judge Al-Springfield, Ill., February 10.—Judge Allen, of the United States court, has appointed Samuel P. Wheeler, of Springfield, Ill., and Charles E. Kimball, of New York, to take charge of 3,350 cars and account for their earnings. They were appointed on two bills filed against Henry O'Hara, the St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute and the Louisville and Nashville. It is surveyed from Florence to Linden, Tenn., where it will connect with the Tennessee Midland.

activity. Nothing is meaner than mean shoes. Nothing is so extravagant and disappointing as buying mean shoes. The retail market abounds with mean shoes. You're likely to run across them anywhere but here. That's why this store has always been a popular place for wearers of dependable Shoes. None but the best Shoes ever gained entrance here. We never had the room or the trade for trashy Shoes; have made it a principle throughout our business life to scorn shoddy Shoes. That's why Shoes here at cost is so astonishing. Many dealers could announce Shoes at cost, and it wouldn't start a ripple of interest. They keep the kind that wear out in shelves, and grow old and rusty in boxes. The simple statement that we would discontinue selling Shoes and close out the present stock at factory cost created a huge and continuous wave of enthusiasm.

ATLANTA, GA., February 11, 1896.

Answered Again.

The Savannah News, which, naturally, fearing a full primary vote of the democrats of Georgia, prefers that there be two conventions, each manipulated by the politicians, instead of one controlled by the people, has the following:

We are inclined to the belief that they (those who oppose two conventions) have reasons for only one convention this year that they never had before, and the ground of our belief is that they never before protested against two conventions. Now, what are the reasons? Has The Constitution stated them fully and frankly? Has it not kept the real reasons "as much under cover

If The Constitution has not been perfeetly clear in giving the reasons why it favors one instead of two conventions, it is because we do not know how to make ourselves understood. "None are so blind as those who will not see," and The News does not want to admit the true motive back of the desire for one convention.

So let us confess, once more, the true inwardness of the "scheme" which The News thinks has been "kept under cover as much as possible." The Constitution wants an open, earnest and full expression from the demo crats of Georgia this summer. We want a ballot box opened in every militia district, when the time comes for the party to do its primary work. We want to see an outpouring of dem ocrats from the mountains to the seaboard, so that there will be no doubt about the attitude of the democrats of Georgia on any public question.

We know that one convention will bring about such a result, and that it will call out the biggest primary vote ever known in Georgia. It will rally to the ballot box every democrat in Georgia, and by securing such primary participation will insure a democratic ma jority this fall of from 50,000 to 70,000

We are opposed to two conventions because we know that if two conventions are held, it will be a most difficult matter to get the people out in the primaries before each of the conventions. Instead of the people voting by ballot in every militia district, the counties will be called together in court house mass meetings, and one hundred democrats-and many of them personally interested-under cover of one roof. will endeavor to speak for 1,000 or 5,000 democrats within the limit of the coun ty for which such mass meeting will claim the right to speak.

Thousands of democrats in Georgia are already badly dissatisfied. It will not take much to make them break the last strand of the cord by which they are bound, even now, so loosely in their fealty to the party. We want to see the faith of these thousands of democrats strengthened once more and to have them brought again into close affiliation and hearty comradeship, forming again the solid phalanx of democratic hosts which for thirty years has rolled up democratic majorities in Georgia ranging from 50,000 to 70,000. Let us have a democratic revival this year! Let us bring every democrat to the front in the county primaries. Let us concentrate our efforts and our attention in one contest among ourselves. and when this is done, let us devote the time and attention that are usually given to fighting a second battle in our own ranks, to a common assault on the lines of the enemy.

We violate no confidence, therefore, when we tell The News, and all of those who are afraid to meet the people face to face, that we are in favor of one convention because we want to hear from the people, and we know this is the best way to get them out.

This is an open and a frank confes sion and The Constitution has made it fifty times in explaining its reasons for supporting the movement in behalf of one convention. And still The News and the others who do not want to understand, but who prefer to persist in their effort at deceiving the people, will continue to ask the same question.

The Republican Dilemma.

The fact that the republican party is more seriously divided on the silver question than the democrats (as The Constitution has so often predicted it would be), is gradually beginning to make itself felt and understood throughout the country.

The recent statement that the silver men of the senate had walked into a trap because they had tacked a free coinage amendment to the tariff bill was excusable enough, and it was natural for the supposition to become cur rent that the republican bimetallists. who are also protectionists, were not pleased with the amendment.

And yet it was perfectly clear to those who look beneath the surface that the republican senators who are in favor of free coinage, voted for the amendment to the tariff bill as part of a deliberate and well matured plan. This is shown by the fact that Mr. Wharton Barker, of Philadelphia, has secured the signatures of sixteen republican senators who pledge themselves to bimetallism and protection-to bimetallism first, as the means of reviving prosperity in this country, and as the means of restoring the par of exchange between the United States and the silver using countries of the east; and to protection second, on the old lines of republican policy.

Taken in connection with the circular which Mr. Barker has sent out to the manufacturers of the country, this move ment is of the utmost significance, and will cut an important figure, not only in the coming campaign, but in the halls of legislation. This circular is a thoroughly outspoken and uncompromising document. Mr. Barker serves notice on the manufacturers in explicit terms that they must indorse this platform of bimetallism and protection and force its adoption by the republican party, or there will be no republican party. He warns them that if they ignore this platform and refuse to unite bimetallism with protection the republican party will be disrupted.

It is long since the eastern republicans have been compelled to listen to this sort of talk, and it is the first time in the history of their party, we believe, that they have been brought face to face with an emergency as serious as that which the temper of the republican bimetallists has precipitated.

Mr. Barker, undoubtedly with the knowledge and consent of the sixteen republican senators who have signed the demand for bimetallism which we printed yesterday, informs the manufacturers of the east that the responsibility rests with them. He tells them that they can force the republican party to adopt a bimetallic platform, and warns them that if they do not they must bid farewell to the benefits of re publican protection. Moreover, he gives them to understand that if they do not force on the republican party a policy that will give the farmers better prices for their products, they cannot expect the agricultural classes of the west and northwest to support the republican party or to indorse protection, which, under the British gold standard, is a sham and a farce.

As we have said, this movement is very significant. It brings the republican party face to face with the probability of both disruption and defeat. For it is about as certain as anything can be which has not yet happened that the party adopting a single gold standard plank or straddling the question will suffer defeat at the hands of the people. In Great Britain the manufacturers and the agricultural classes have united in behalf of bimetallism—the farmers to restore prices and prosperity, and the manufacturers to maintain their markets in the east. In this country, however, the manufacturers, especially in the northeast, appear to be totally blind to their own interests. At any rate they have placed their great influence thus far at the service of the money power. It remains to be seen what effect the new movement in the party

Under the head of "What Ails the Democratic Party?" The Washington Post makes some interesting comments on the situation in Kentucky. In order that our leaders may read and ponder these comments from a presumably impartial source, we print The Post's article in another column. It describes the situation in Frankfort exactly. Six men, who have recently become converts to the republican doctrine of gold contraction, are now engaged in preventing the democrats of the Kentucky legislature from electing to the senate of the United States a democrat who is indorsed by the party and by the people. The attitude of these six men who have placed their gold contraction views above the harmony and unity of the party, above the success of the demoeratic candidate, and above the will of the people, is an object lesson that the democratic voters of Georgia and of every southern state may study with not have been more apt or more to the profit. The policy that animates these six gold contractionists is the policy of rule or ruin. Being hopelessly in the minority they are determined to prevent the election of a senator who is indorsed by the party and who represents the views of the people. All that they can accomplish is the demoralization and disruption of the party, and this they are trying hard to do. The ailment of the democratic party, if The Post is really seeking information, is that an element hopelessly in the minority, but having the advantage of power and office, is trying to poison the party by thrusting down its throat republican financial doctrines. This and nothing else is "what ails the demo cratic party."

A Murder Center.

The Mexican Herald, a newspaper printed in the City of Mexico, calls attention to the statistics for 1894, which show that during that year there were 432 homicides in the city, and 7,775 persons were wounded.

This makes 125 homicides for each 100,000 of the population and 2,258 wounds for the same number. Now, in other countries the homicides per 100,-000 of population stand as follows: Italy has 12.67; Spain, 12.10; Austria, 3.11; Belgium, 2.52; England, 1.80. This is the percentage per year for each 100,000 inhabitants, while the City of Mexico has 125 per 100,000. A murder is committed in that city every twenty hours, and in every twenty-five hours twenty-one persons are wounded.

The Mexican paper goes on to say that these crimes generally occur among the lower classes, and that life is as secure among the higher classes as it is in other countries.

Doubtless there is something in this explanation, but it will not satisfy the outside world. A country with such an enormous percentage of homicides cannot expect to attract much immigration. The south is to some extent in the same box with Mexico. Our occasional lynchings have impressed outsiders with the belief that this is a lawless section, and a few disorderly persons have given us a reputation which is wholly undeserved. No country can expect to draw immigrants and capital until it reduces crime to a minimum. The Mexicans will have to learn this lesson. and the south, having already learned it, must now apply it. The murderer, the pistol toter and the lyncher must go.

Two Classes of Statesmen.

Senator Tillman's recent reference to John C. Calhoun's impoverished condition after a life spent in the public service, has caused several of our contemporaries to dig up some interesting facts in regard to public men and their for-

When Alexander Hamilton was killed by Aaron Burr his estate was in such a tangle that a public fund was collected for the relief of his widow and children. Thomas Jefferson was so poor in his old age that the Virginia legislature authorized him to dispose of his property by lottery to meet his liabilities, and after his death a national subscription was started to pay his debts. Robert Morris, the patriotic financier of the revolution, was in a debtors' prison during the last years of his life. Monroe spent his closing years in a hard struggle with poverty. Henry Clay mortgaged his estate for $50,000 when he was financially pressed, and his friends raised the money to pay off the mortgage. Daniel Webster was always in debt and always in need of money. He received doubtless over $100,000 in gifts from his admirers. James A. Garfield and Sam Randall never tried to accumulate property. Andrew Johnson and General Grant suffered disastrous financial reverses before they died.

In England the elder Pitt, the great earl of Chatham, died in such poverty that parliament paid his debts and provided for his family. Edmund Burke was so poor in his old age that the king granted him a pension of $15,000. Charles James Fox squandered a fortune in gambling and his friends bought him an annuity of $15,000. The younger Pitt had at one time a yearly income of $50,000, but he left debts to the amount of $200,000, which parliament paid. Richard Cobden, the apostle of free trade, got so deeply in debt that his friends raised $400,000 to help him out. Lord Erskine died a bankrupt, and the Irish parliament gave Henry Grattan $250,000 to place him beyond want. Subscriptions were also raised for Daniel O'Connell and Charles Stewart Parnell. On the other hand, some statesmen are very thrifty. Washington, Lincoln, John Bright, Gladstone, Wendell Phillips and Charles Sumner all had considerable property, and in recent years we have had a very high official who became a milionaire in a few years, through some mysterious manner not fully understood.

Every man, whether in public or private life, should fight against poverty. Lord Macaulay was right when he said "While it is far better, without question that a great minister should carry his contempt of money to excess than to contaminate his hands with unlawful gain, it is neither right nor becoming in a man to whom the public has given an income more than sufficient for his comfort and dignity to bequeath to his con stituents a large debt."

An English Statesman's Views

The remarks of Mr. Balfour, first lord of the British treasury, in reply to a deputation representing the agricultural classes of that country, have a significance and a force that our own farmers cannot afford to ignore.

Mr. Balfour said it was his personal conviction that agriculture suffered doubly owing to the present condition of the currency, and gave it as his belief that the low prices of farm products were largely due (1) to the artificial appreciation of gold, which followed the demonetization of silver, and (2) to the artificial advantages given the producer in silver using countries over those in gold using countries. Mr. Balfour said that obstacles to reform did not come from abroad, but were to be found at

If he had been talking to the farmer of the United States his remarks could point. We call attention to the fact that while some of our small politicians are assuring our farmers that there has been no appreciation of gold caused by the demonetization of silver, this wellknown English statesman admits it and declares that the remedy is to be found in bimetallism. Fortunately, the farmers of the United States understand the situation pretty thoroughly. In some parts of the country many of them still believe that protection will afford some sort of remedy for the situation, but the great majority know well that the single gold standard not only renders any form of legis lative protection impossible, but compels them to sell the products of their labor for silver prices in order to compete with the worse than pauper labor of India and the far east.

Negroes in New England. The Boston Herald is a very fair newspaper, and we are not surprised to find it frankly admitting that New England is not sincere in her acceptance of race equality. The Herald says: We have always considered that there was a great deal of hypocrisy mixed with the censure which many people in Massa-chusetts have bestowed upon their fellowountrymen in the southern states in conseof the unwillingness of the latter to oclate freely with colored people. the earliest records of mankind down to the resent time the disposition to take to one's edit for not committing offenses one had no opportunity to commit, and in this way contrasting one's virtues with the bvious faults of others, has been a favor means of securing self satisfaction. But the incidents attendant upon the coming to this city of Bishop Arnett furn' illustration of the extreme superficiality of our alleged beliefs in human equality.

In New Haven and Boston respectable negroes of high standing have recently been refused admission to all the first-class hotels. The Boston paper explains this by saying that the hotel proprietors bar out the negroes because they are afraid that their patrons would not be willing to come in contact with colored guests. Under such circumstances our contemporary does not blame hotel proprietors for drawing the color line.

The Herald advises New England to cease its abuse and criticism of the south for its position on the race question, and says:

Now, so long as these prejudices are entertained—and we do not believe any one can honestly deny their existence—it is both foolish and untruthful of us to condemn manifestations of similar prejudice by white people living in the southern states. There is possibly a great deal of force in the assertions that have some times been made by southerners that if half of the population of the state of Massachusetts was made up of negroes, these colored people would find a line of demarcation lrawn between them and their white fellow-citizens sharper, wider and deeper than that which separates the races in the ern states.

This sensible newspaper understands that it makes a difference when there are many negroes in a community and when there are only a few. In England and France people denounce us for opposing social equality, but when the English and French go to the West Indies and Africa they develop the same feeling of racial superiority which prevails here. This sentiment is inborn in the White race, and it prevents it from being swallowed up by the colored races with whom it comes in contact.

He Needs Watching.

The New York papers are discussing the wonderful business precocity of a small boy in a down-town broker's office

The boy sailed in the other day and made $6,000 by expending 2 cents. He did it in this way: When Secretary Carlisle's bond issue notice was published the youngster read it closely and saw that his bid would stand as good a chance of being considered as any of the others. So he took a sheet of letetr paper bearing the firm name of his employers in the corner and put in a bid for $150,000 at a figure which caused it to be awarded to him. Then he sold his right to receive the bonds to a Wall street broker for $6,000. The incident shows what the up-todate small boy can do when he humps himself. But it would be a good idea to keep an eve on this youth. When a boy develops such phenomenal sharpness and makes money so easily the chances are that he will be tempted into speculations of a doubtful character. Ives, the young Napoleon of finance. was just such a boy, and before he was twenty-one he was engaged in the work of wrecking railroads. A little later he went to prison and came out still young with a blighted career before him. It is a bad thing for a boy to learn the art of money making too early in life.

Watch the Developments.

A correspondent, referring to the fact that bids were received at the treasury representing something like $600,000,000 asks us how The Constitution reconciles it with the statement recently made in these columns that there are not more, than $300,000,000 of gold in this country available for purposes of redemp

If our correspondent will wait and watch developments he will not need to have an explanation. We repeat the statement to which our correspondent refers, and call his attention to the fact that as late as last Friday gold was going out of the treasury, not for ex port, but to pay for the first installment on the bids of those who hoped to get a slice of the bonds. The amount of all the bids was $558 000,000. As a matter of fact the total amount of gold coin and gold certificates in the United States is less than $550, 000,000 by the sum of gold that has been exported since 1890. Even at the treasury, according to The Washington Post, fears are entertained that a con siderable share of the gold offered in payment of the first installment of the $100,000,000 will be withdrawn from the reserve. From January 6th to February 5th $8,500,000 in gold was withdrawn from the treasury, and it is worthy of note that the gold withdrawn from the treasury since the reserve touched $68,-000,000 has not been exported. Some of it, indeed, a large part of it, was sent abroad, but was immediately reshipped to this side. Now, if this is the condition of affairs before the first installment is paid in, what will it be by the time the last installment is paid in?

The Fx gold contractionists in the Kentucky legislature are still playing their esperate game of democratic disruption.

The London Times does'nt know where the bidders for the bonds propose to get their The Times seems to have forgotter that the treasury has a reserve which Mr. Carlisle has placed on tap for the benefit of the bond forcers and buyers.

It is still an interesting question where Banker Morgan got the information that enabled him to overbid Banker Stewart by a fraction. If Banker Morgan got the in formation from his friends in the treasury department it was a neat stroke of bus

We are walting to hear one reasonab argument against one convention,

The London Times says the success of the loan is "a personal triumph for the president." It is a triumph, however, that the people have to pay a high price for.

It seems highly probable now that the gold contractionists who are afraid to face the people will be unable to invent a sin gle argument against one convention. They have tried hard and have failed.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Queen Victoria's greatest bane is th enormous amount of original "poetry" sent to her from all parts of the world. It is all read by her secretary, and the best of it submitted to her majesty and personally acknowledged. On the recent birth of the royal grandson nearly half a ton of manu script verse was received at Windsor.

A woman wrote the first American novel deference to the opinions of the times she adopted the nom deplume of "Philenia" to "The Power of Sym pathy; or, The Triumph of Nature" was in wo volumes and was written in 1789. Amelie Rives Chandler wrote her first story to make life worth living for a friend. This friend, a woman, was very bright but fearfully ugly. Amelie Rives dis covered, when she was in Paris, that the French surgeons could change the unhappy woman's countenance, but it would cost $6,000. So the gifted young Virginian wrote "According to St. John" and received $6,000 for its serial appearance in a magazine. She turned the check over to the surgeons, who were successful in their operations.

We didn't quite beat the French in supporting a government loan, but no other nation ever did, for that matter. The big $600,000,000 loan put out in 1872 by the French government to meet the Germ was fourteen times oversubscribed.

Says The Springfield Republican: "Senator Hawley, of Connecticut, has until 1899 to prepare himself to meet the fate which the A. P. A. has in store for him, to punish him for voting to confirm the nomina tion of Colonel Coppinger to be brigadier general. All the bright and shining lights of that order have agreed, so it is said, that Hawley's policical future shall be blasted with the scorching breath of their displeasure, and that never again shall he sit with Tillman and Peffer, Hansbrough and Chandler in the higher galaxy of our lawmakers. This awful menace was held before the senators in general while the nomination of Coppinger was pending, and it had the effect of making his confirmation that way in relation to the re-election of Hawley.

BARRETT'S BLUNDER.

Richmond Times: The real sentiof the republicans are ments by their applause of Barrett, ne was pressing Talbert at the points where he was most offensive to the people of the south. The reference of the matter to the judiciary committee gives no clew to their real feelings. That reference was a sly move of candidate Reed to rid his candidacy for the presidency of what promised to be a most embarrassing episode. But the real feeling of the northern republicans were shown in the applause given Barrett These people still act in politics, however pleasant they are personally, as if every hero and patriot of the south was indeed traitor. It, therefore, becomes the southern people the more strenuously to resent the imputation and to spread abroad the truth.

A few more scenes like this in congress and confederate memorial societies and southern battle abbeys will spring up in every city in the south. this tempest in a teapot-the position taken by Congressman Talbert—if Congressman Barrett proposes to censure every man in the south who refuses to "eat dirt" on the question of the south's course in 1861, and disnonor the records of their states, he would better start right now experimenting with a view to discovering the elixir of life. The southern woods are full of men-many of whom were opposed to secession as an original proposition, though they did not doubt the right of secession-who stand just where Mr. Talbert stands in his refusal to stultify himself. Yet were it to come to a test of loyalty to the restored union, in-volving a sacrifice of life and treasure, it is safe to assert that the south would meet it as well as would the north

What Ails the Democratic Party? From The Washington Post.

The situation in the Kentucky legislature must afford a pleasing and instructive pectacle for democrats. When the vote or senator was taken at Frankfort, Thursday, there were present 136 members It required, therefore, only 69 votes to elect Blackburn. The republican candidate had but 67-the full party strength-Blackburn had 62, Carlisle, 2; Bate, 1, and McCreary, 4. If all the democrats had voted for Blackburn he would have had 68, and then the populist voting for Bate would have come over to Blackburn, as he has repeatedly promised to do in case his vote elect. It is a fact, therefore, that Black-burn's election was defeated by democratsby ?the six members of his own party who ould rather see a republican chosen than keep the senatorship as a democratic asset.

A looker-on at this extraordinary political medy, especially one with a thoughtful and speculative turn of mind, might be tempted to philosophize as to the strange temper into which the democratic party has fallen within the past few years. Formerly such a spectacle would have been impossible. Democrats fought among themelves as they do now. There were clashing ambitions, there were feuds and factions and antagonisms. There was the same friction of thought and purpose, the same divergence of opinion, the same hot con-flicts and disagreements, but democrats began and ended their quarrels within the party lines. They submitted to the will of the majority, and when it came to the battle royal with the common foe they preented a solid and unbroken front. They were loyal to themselves and to their par-ty. The name of traitor and recalcitrant ty. The name of traitor and recalcitrant was infamous. Today we see as between democratic factions a bitterness passes human understanding. Tha ness led them to sacrifice Maryland and Kentucky, to lose innumerable districts in New York, Ohio and other states, and now it is giving the Kentucky senatorship to the cans instead of to the democratic party—giving it deliberately, with a sort of joy and satisfaction. What can have come over the democracy since 1892—what spirit of suicidal madness and infatuation? Is the party on the point of disintegration; has it lost its cohesive quality as it seems to have lost the faculty of government Has it degenerated from a compact, hom us and effective organization into a

Two papers in North Carolina, The Hickory Press and Carolinian and The Shelby Aurora, now use the personal pronoun "I" instead of the editorial "we" in their editorial columns. Once a Georgia editor tried that and he had seven personal fights on hand before breakfast.

THE COTTON QUESTION.

Lumpkin Independent: Every indication points to an increased acreage of the cotton crop this year over that of 1895, and also to a large increase in the quantity of guano to be used. We are fixing up for a 10,000,000-bale crop for '96. All seem united, pushing in that direction. We all admit that 5,000,000 bales would pan out more profit, but we all love to handle the fleecy staple, love to hustle, love to see the warehousemen grow fat, love to give the profit, but we all love to handle the neecy staple, love to hustle, love to see the warehousemen grow fat, love to give the railroads work to do, love to see the banker prosper, love to see the merchants spread themselves, trying to cover a big

There are many things other than cotton which can be raised to advantage in Georgia, and stock is one of them.

Jones County News: Would that the people of this county would learn to raise their own stock and supplies. If they would they would soon see between light and darkness. Cotton next fall will not exceed 4 cents per pound. This will be a nice price to pay for mules at $150 each.

Sparta Ishmaelite: It is said that while south Georgia farmers are going to plant more cotton this year, they are going to reduce the melon acreage. They will do better to reduce the acreage of both crops.

STATE PRESS PERSONALS.

-Editor Gus Cox, of The LaGrange COX.—Editor Gus Cox, of The LaGrange Graphic, having been mentioned as a candidate for the legislature from Troup county, announces through his paper that he will not consent to make the race. While we commend our friend's good judgment from a financial point of view, we know him to be one of those well-balanced and well-informed young men who would do the state good service and place himself at the head of active working members in the general assembly. We should be pleased to see him there.—Meriwether Vindicator.

GRAVES.—John Temple Graves captured a Chicago audience recently with his famous lecture, "The Twentieth Century Woman." The Inter Ocean speaks in glowing terms of the eloquence of the Georgian and devotes considerable space to a report of his notable effort.

HENRY.—Judge W. M. Henry, besides being one of the best of Georgia's judges, is one of the most urbane gentlemen that one ever meets. By his sagacious management of the court as well as through his splendid personality he is winning many friends among Cartersville and Bartow county people—Cartersville American. ville American.

TALK ABOUT ATLANTA.

Jackson Argus: Atlanta seems to be on a building boom in spite of the fact that her great exposition has just closed. However, who knows but that the great buildings soon to be erected there were really the outcome of this great enterprise. Atlanta is yet capable of a deal of growth and expansion.

The Madisonian: Atlanta wants a new postoffice building. The old one has grown entirely too small for present need and Congressman Livingston will soon introduce a bill in congress authorizing the erection of a $1,000,000 structure to take the place of the one now in use. We are betting on Atlanta "getting there."

It is true that Judge Butt is personally popular and I expect that he will make a strong race. But it that he will make a strong race. But he won't do for him to lean too strong to the gold side of this controversy. If he sees to Congress Tom Chappell and Jim Worrell will be the candidates for the judgestip,

Hon. Dick Russell, of Jackson county, was in the city yesterday and is authority for the fact that he is very much of a candidate for re-election to the solicibrship. "The report that I would not be a candidate is not correct," said he. "The fact of the matter is I will be, and Jackson Oconee counties have already isdorsed my candidacy."

Another man whose name was omitted from the list of candidates inadvertently was Senator Charley Bush, of Miller county, who is an active candidate for the solicitorship in the Pataula circuit, and who, his friends say, is going to whip the fight. Senator Bush has a large acquaintance among the leading men of the state and has made many friends during his terms of service in the house and senate.

The Brunswick Times-Advertiser throws cathode rays on the congressional situation and the position of some of the Turner men when it says:

"Editor Greer, of The Douglas Breeze, writes a discreet and well-tempered edi-torial as to the probabilities of Mr. Brantley's candidacy for congress based upon a statement of his local contemporary that Coffee county was for Mr. Brantley. article is graciously civil to Mr. Brantley, and says all the good that any gentleman might wish publicly expressed of him It is also exceedingly flattering to Mr. Turner and justly so. But it attempts to sustain a precedent in Mr. Turner's favor that is not justified by any party rule of public service demand. It insists that Mr. Turner, following the precedent of Mr. Blount, will retire from public life after another term, making the tenth, the time served by Mr. Blount, when Mr. Brantley will follow as a natural consequence of his ability and popularity. If the assertion that Mr. Turner's position as democratic leader requires his continuance as a majority of the second tional blessing, at this time, why should we look for a different condition two years hence? Then, again, suppose Mr. does not thoroughly agree with Mr. Turner's ideal political economy? In that event possibly his candidacy might be justified upon grounds which The Breeze has

An interesting bit of gossip is found in The Tifton Gazette, where the prediction is made that the race in the second will be between Judge Bower and Judge Griggs, with Captain Hammond stumping the dis-trict for Bower. A prominent politician is quoted as saying:

"If Hammond goes out of the race and
Griggs and Bower oppose each other, Berrien county can almost safely be coun for Griggs. He is young, vigorous and a and his friends throughout the legion, and you may safely depend that it will take a mighty strong man to beat him. The judge's personal popularity is so great that many avowed sound money men are putting aside this one issue and giving him a hearty support. It seems to be generally conceded down this way now that the fight is between Judges Griggs and Bower, and all this talk of Senator Mercer, of Calhoun county, and others being in the race, is idle and counts for naught.

Silver and $1 Wheat.

From The Farmer's Voice. It is possible that we may never again see $1 wheat. It is possible that the pauper labor and cheap land countries that produce wheat will make it impossible for us ever again to compete with them in wheat production. Indeed we may go far as to say that it is altogether probable. But the only way in which we can insure a rise in the prices of farm products including wheat—is to increase the circulating medium, thus furnishing a stream on which commerce can float, infusing new blood into our industries and espe into our agriculture; and there are only two practical methods of increasing the into our agriculture; and the two practical methods of increasing the circulation, either the admission of silver to the mints on the same basis as gold is admitted or the issuance of non-interest bearing greenbacks instead of interest bearing bonds. If either or both wer done wheat would come nearer $1 a bushel than it ever will under our present micrable system of finance. The whole duty of this government is to create conditions under which farm products will bring a remunerative price. That accomplished we shall all enjoy prosperity, and until this is accomplished, as we have often said before, we shall not have prosperity. Hay prices mean prosperity for everybody. As a farmer said to us the other day, money is made out of hogs when you are feeding fifty cent corn and not when you are feeding twenty cent corn. Twenty cent corn signifies low-priced pork and jow. corn signifies low priced everything.

Japanese Spindles.

The New York World.

The meeting of the Manufacturers and Producers' Association of California at Saa Francisco yesterday was called to "consider the question of the Japanese invasion of our manufacturing field."

It was time to do something to awaken American manufacturers to the necessity of greater activity if we are not to 1059 for greater activity if we are not to loss

American manufacturers to the necessity for greater activity if we are not to loss our textile trade in Asia as a result of the competition of Japan.

That wonderful country threatens to become an important factor among the competing manufactories of the world. It has gone into the spinning business with the best machinery. There are $50,000 spindles clattering away there now, and the Lancashire weavers too are alarmed. A recent report made in England shows that in all probability Japan will have over half a million more spindles going within a year, and as no Englishman hopes to compete with Japanese cheap labor there is a prospective blueness settling over the English manufacturers.

But here is the grain of comfort for Americans. The Japanese, who show marvelous ingenuity in imitating the very best machinery, show little or no disposition to produce the raw material. In fact, their country appears to be incapable of growing the best wool in large quantities, and it cannot grow cotton at all.

All this, which bears heavily upon England, is perhaps a genutine source of satisfaction to a very large and patriotic section of our country which is still engaged in furnishing raw material to the world.

thief Connolly Made Chief in Fact in Matters Relating to the Detective Department-Routine Business.

Chief of Police/Connolly will reorganize the present detective force as appointed by the board of police commissioners at a special meeting held at the time of the tion of the old detective department. The board selected six patrolmen to do etective work in place of the old force, the appointments being temporary.

At the regular monthly meeting of the board yesterday afternoon Chief Connolly was authorized to make such changes in the present force as he deemed best. The entire matter was placed in his hands and it appears that in this instance he is chief police in reality. The chief stated after the meeting of the board that he will probably make at least two changes in the present force, but he lined to name the men who will be put back to regular patrol duty. The board also authorized the chief to appoint a elerk in the detectives office—the place filled by Mr. Walter Johnson up to the time of the abolition of the detective de-partment—and Mr. Johnson will be tenred the office again. His salary was not ixed by the board, but it will probably be he same as that of a patrolman.

When asked last night if he would appoint any of the old detectives to duty in that work again the chief declined to state that he would or would not. He sa that he would consider the matter fully and arrive at a conclusion which seemed to the best interests of the department. It is said that some of the members of the old department are anxious to get back to detective work and that most of those at present working as detectives are as anxous to get back to patrol duty.

The Last a Peaceful Meeting.

The last meeting of the board as at present constituted was held at 4 o'clock yes breaker in point of harmony. Not a ripple of dissent disturbed the session and unless occurred in secret session none of the members locked horns as of yore. Afte ord it appears that the commissioners offered each other the hand of good will and started out with the determination of anding the existence of the present board h an orderly manner.

Captain English Goes Out. Captain English's connection with the loard practically ceased when the meeting adjourned. Unless a special meeting is held during the month he will not sit with the board again before the expiration of his present term. At the first council mee ing next month his successor will be elected to take his seat at the next meeting of the board And Captain English may or may

With Captain English, Mr. Stockdell, the of the new commissioners, will go out of office at the first March meeting of the council. He was elected for the unexpired term of Mr. Venable, who resigned as a member of the board on January 1st last. Mr. Stockdell will doubtless be a candidate for re-election and it is said that his thances for the place are good.

Won't Be Chairman.

If re-elected a member of the board Cap-tain English will not be a candidate for the chairmanship. He so informed The Constitution in an interview which appeared in Sunday's paper. He states that he will not accept the chairmanship in he will not accept the chairmanship in any event and will not be an aspirant to the place if re-elected a member of the board. Captain English has been connected with the police department of Atlanta since 1881, his service beginning w...n his term as mayor on January 1st of that year. For two years as mayor he was an ex-officio member of the police board as Mayor King is now. At the expiration of his term as mayor on January 1, 1883, his connection with the board ceased until the following March, a little over two months.

Captain English's Good Work.

In March, 1883, he was elected a member of the police board and since that time up to the present has been a member of it constantly. For about fifteen years he has devoted a part of his time serving the city as commissioner and for the greater part of the time was chairman of the board. Taking charge of the department when it needed executive ability in its management, Captain English did much improve and better the police protection of the city. He served in the capacity of commissioner faithfully and to him is due much of the credit for the successful work of the department for many years.

Mr. Brotherton Accommodated. Considerable routine business was transacted by the board yesterday. The regular meeting hour was 7:30 o'clock last night but on account of the meeting of the new city executive committee at the courthouse at that hour, the board was called to-gether at 4 o'clock in the afternoon so as to enable Captain Brotherton, a mem-ber of the new committee, to attend the courthouse meeting. All of the members of the police board-Mayor King, Chairman Johnson, Captain English, Mr. Beauprie, Mr. Brotherton, Mr. Branan and Mr.

Stockdell-were present when the chairman talled for order. Harris for Sixty Days. Officer J. C. Harris, who was suspended for being under the influence of intoxicants while en duty on January 22d, was arraigned before the board on the charge. He pleaded guilty. The board decided to suspend him for sixty days and directed the chairman to reprimand him for his 20ndlet.

The evidence showed that large crowds congregated about the depot entrances and the officers found it necessary to clear the asises in order that the people might pass. The officer was exonerated by the board.

The new detectives have arrested ten defendants on charges of theft since going to work on January 22d, eight of whom were bound over to jail by magistrate. Three criminals were captured wanted in other counties and the detectives made six city cases. They recovered $447.37 worth of stolen goods.

The chief reported that the new Game-well police alarm instruments recently purchased had been placed and were in use well at the station house. The service has been greatly improved by the new instruments. The electrical work was done by Superintendent Wright and his assistants and the signal operators' quarters are now attractive and interesting.

Civil Service Frosted. The muchly talked of proposition to put the police department under civil service rules appears to have fallen with a dull thud, although it may be taken up at a thud, although it may be taken up at a meeting some time in the distant future. Some had been led to believe that the entire police department would be put on a civil service basis at the meeting yesterday, but the matter received a frost chilling to the bone. Chairman Johnson was the only member to suggest the matter. He stated that he understood that some members of the board had accused him of stealing their thunder by suggesting civil service. He denied any such intention of larceny. He said that the matter could only be explained by quoting the maxim that great men's minds run in the same channel. With that the matter passed. The board went into secret session and same channel. With that the matter pass-ed. The board went into secret session and remained there for some time.

He Is Accompanied by Father Orban and Will Be the Guest of Father Keiley While in the City.

Next Thursday afternoon Cardinal Satolli, of Washington, accompanied by Father Orban, librarian of the Catholic university, will arrive in Atlanta and will be the guest of Father Keiley.

They will leave Washington Wednesday morning and will reach the city over the Southern. The party leaves on an extended tour of the southwest and will be absent more than a month. Since the appointment by the pope Cardipal Satolli has received no intimation as to when he will be summoned to Rome. He does not know when he may receive letters calling him to the pope, but it is not expected that he will leave America before the middle of May. Cardinal Satolli has been caardinal for only a short time. His appointment was not, however, a great surprise, as he had long been recognized as one of the brainlest men of the Catholic church. He came to America about two years ago from Rome as the papal delegate, which practically made him the pope of America. Since his appointment to the archdeaconship he will be recalled to Rome. At the time of the arrival of Satolli in America there was much comment as to what was really to be his mission. It was stated by many that he was to declare a message from the pope to the effect that America was for Catholicism. Other reasons were assigned and his coming was discussed in all of the paners of the United States.

ATLANTA'S CREMATORIES.

Mr. Andrews, of the Dixon Company, Goes to New York.

The board of health and the special com mittee from the general council, Mr. Mayson chairman, have been consulting relative to the two crematories Atlanta contemplates build ng this year.

Representatives of both bodies consult-ed informally yesterday and all agreed that the work should be accomplished this year, if possible. The special committee appointed to secure a site or sites reported what had been done, but for prudential reasons decline to divulge that work. It can be stated, however, that the commit-reasons decline to dividige that work. It can be stated, however, that the committee has several options on several places which will suit the work, but decline to give out the locations until the trade is classed so that opposition to the locations may not interfere with the trade.

Mr. Andrews, of the crematory company which built the crematory Atlanta has, left for New York yesterday and upon his return there will be a joint meeting of the board of health and the special committee from the general council, when some definite action will be taken in the matter. The disposal of garbage has long been a big question with New York, and nearly a year ago the legislative body of that city sent a special committee over the country to inspect the manner of disposing of garbage. Atlanta was visited, and when that committee made its report the report declared Atlanta the cleanest city in the country and recommended the same system for New York.

His death was not entirely unexpected. but was a great shock to his friends. He had been ill for nearly three weeks, but his illness was not regarded as fatal. He had made arrangements to leave for Florida at 10:50 o'clock last night, hoping thereby to regain his health, and a berth in the Florida sleeper had been reserved for him. He died just at the time when he expected to leave for the Land of Flowers.

Mr. Saunders had not been in good health for some months. He had a very serious illness last year, and never grew strong afterwards, although he returned to his office and seemed as cheerful and happy spirited as ever.

About three weeks ago he was taken to his bed again. He was troubled with some stomach complication, and the nature of his illness was not such as to cause his neighbors and family any alarm. He was up part of the time, and he hoped that a trip to Florida would bring the change he needed. He died at 11 o'clock last night, of heart failure.

Mr. Saunders was connected with quite number of local business concerns. He had lived here eight years, and has had charge of the publication of the city directory for that length of time. Under his management many improvements have been made in the book, and it has grown from a little volume to a large one. He has added many new and interesting features to the book

Mr. Saunders married Miss Fannie Cree, daughter of a prominent railroad man, of Detroit. He leaves a wife and one child, a boy about twelve years old. His little girl, Bessie, died last Christmas of diphtheria.

Mr. Saunders was of English parentage. His father was an officer in the English army, and while stationed at Delhi, in India, H. G. Saunders was born. He was educated at Brighton, England, and early in life joined the royal navy. He served on Mediterranean, Australian and cape stations. He tired of the navy and came to the United States. He secured a posi-tion with the Grand Trunk railway, but after a few years drifted into newspaper-ing. He was connected with The Louisville Courier in a prominent capacity for ome time. For ten years he was manager of R. L. Polk & Co.'s business, at Detroit, one of the largest publishing houses in the north. He came to Atlanta eight years ago as their southern manager, and has been publishing the city directory since. He was elected secretary of the Chamber of Commerce five years ago, and was also secretary and treasurer of the Wholesale Merchants' Association. He occupied numerous positions of trust. The funeral arrangements will be announced zen of Atlanta and widely known throughout the southern states, died yesterday morning at 4 o'clock at his residence on Merritts avenue.

The death of Mr. Prioleau was not expected, though he had been ill for several days. While in Jacksonville he was quite sick, but soon recovered sufficiently to return to his home in this city. After he reached home his condition appeared much more favorable and his friends be lieved that he would soon be well again. A few days ago his condition took an unfavorable turn and he sank rapidly. The funeral will occur this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from his late residence on

Merritts avenue and the interment will be at Oakland. The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. J. McCormick. Mr. Prioleau leaves a wife and four children and a large circle of friends who are heartbroken.

Mr. Prioleau was for many years one the leading insurance men of the city and has traveled over all portions of the southern states and is well known in almost every southern city. He was born in Beaufort, S. C., forty-one years ago and was a member of the Huguenot family of Charleston. He moved to Atlanta nearly twenty-two years ago and became identi-fied in the insurance business. He was for many years the special southern agent of the Queen Fire Insurance Company in the south, but of late years has been a fire adjuster at the service of all companies which wished him to work up reports and adjust losses.

Some time ago he made a trip to Florida, where he had several losses to adjust and a case which was to be heard in the courts a case which was to be heard in the courts at Jacksonville. While in that city he was attacked with a compilcation of diseases, but soon recovered enough to enable him to return home. "That will lay the matter in every detail before the committee and will give those gentlemen an opportunity of doing what they deem necessary.

"Now, in some ways the committee is as it should have been. Mr. Howell made the metion to create the committee and consequently should have been made chairman. Then Mr. Maddox introduced the ordinance which provoked Mr. Howell's motion for the committee, and he should have been on it. Busy Farmers.

Cooksville, Ga., February 10.—(Special.)—
Our farmers seem very reluctant about sowing oats, but are pushing the hauling of guano to the utmost. The people of this place and the country generally have been getting down to a very economical basis of living, and it is well to keep down buoyant hopes of an immediate change to former good times. All that is needed is plenty of work at good pay on the farms and in the factory.

Wheat Follows Cotton, but Stocks Fluctuated Violently and Closed Highly Excited and Higher.

New York, February 10.—The week opened with renewed activity and strength in the market for securities. The transactions aggregated 421,042 shares, the largest total for some time past. While the bulk of the business was in Sugar, Tobacco and St. Paul, still the general list was decidedly more active than of late, and the cidedly more active than of late, and the dealings were well distributed. The ten-dency of the market in the main was to-ward higher prices. At intervals a few of ward higher prices. At intervals a few of the leading speculatives reacted sharply under realizations, but the declines invariably brought in fresh buying orders, and rallies quickly ensued. The buil speculation received its first impetus this morning from London, where securities were above the parity of our closing on Saturday. The foreigners bought fully 20,000 shares in this market. The reduction of 1/2c in the posted rates for sterling exchange and continued deposits of gold in the subtreasury on account of payments for the new government loan stimulated the new upward movement in prices. Sugar in the early trading rose to 1151/4, but in the early trading rose to 115%, but later declined to 112% on the introduction in the senate of an amendment to the tariff bill to take off % differential on refined sugar. As the teriff bill with the free silver rider is not expected to pass, those who sold Sugar down to the figure named were covering at the close, and a named were covering at the close, and a rally to 113%@113½ occurred. Tobacco was the most erratic stock of the day. It fell ½ to 75½, rose to 76½, declined to 75½, jumped to 75½, receded to 77½ and finally sold as high as 80½, closing at 78¾. There were heavy purchases to cover shorts, one firm alone being credited with buying orders to the extent of ever 2000 shares. orders to the extent of over 20,000 shares The advance in the general list was equal to \(\frac{1}{2}\text{@1\frac{1}{2}} \) per cent, the Grangers leading. to \(\frac{4}{2} \) per cent, the Grangers leading. Manhattan is gradually reflecting the belief that the proposed lease of the property by the Metropolitan Traction will be ac-cepted. We learn that the matter has not been formally acted upon by either board, but that the preliminary steps between in-dividuals are being taken to get at a work-able proposition which cannot be formu-lated, so as to present it to the board. The faith of the individuals backing the Metro-politan Traction interest is almost unbound-ed in the possible uses of electricity as a motive power, as they study its bearing on the future. Manhattan, they claim, by its use could be made to earn 15 to 20 per cent

New York, February 10.—The news was as in some respects bearish, the speculation was small and the bears took advantage of the opportunity to sell the market down. Hubbard Bros. & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

New York, February 10.—There has been during the forenoon a decided check to the bull speculation, which, though limited has been in evidence for the past tew days. At & for May, a small but urgent demand, when supplied, left the market with few buying orders, and business became dull, with a market bearish feeling. Primarily, this was caused by cables saying a decline was looked for in consequence of increased India crop estimate and on account of larger stocks in spinners' hands then generally believed. New Orleans sent word that speculation was not responsive to the recent stimulus of small visible supply estimate, and the talk of Mexican weevils, and that the market lacked animation. The lack of demand here, aided by these influences, broke prices below & for May, and they were easy at midday. The market has been steady during the afternoon, but with some pressure to sell. No buying power has been apparent, and the close is barely steady. Hubbard Bros. & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

Sun's Cotton Beview. and made further sharp advances, but in some instances there were late reactions on account of realizations.

The fluctuations of active shares were violent, covering an extreme range in many instances of 1 to 3 per cent. Sugar rose 2 per cent, falling nearly 3, and then rallying at the close.

American Tobacco rose 4 per cent, but lost half the gain.

American Tobacco rose 4 per cent and then was erratic around the top.

United States Leather, preferred, broke 2 per cent on doubts as to the payment of a dividend. The strongest features of the the Bombay receipts were very large and the speculation here was so small that shorts took advantage of the absence of support to attack the market. Cotton goods are dull and irregular, the spot markets for raw cotton are disappointing to the bulls, spot cotton here was reduced a little, but finally the speculation is confined to the professionel element. Some contend that the crop has been under-estimated. Liverpool seems to be acting under that impression and so does Manchester. Some think, however, that the present increase in the crop movement is only temporary and that it consists largely of cotton that would have come forward a week or two ago, but for heavy and general rains which interfered with the marketing of the crop.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

New York, February 10.—(Special.)—What the bears claim are the premonitions of the break to be caused by the coming liquidation of March began to be felt in the cotton market about noon today. The receipts were large and promise to continue large during the week, and though the exports were heavy, the demand seemed to be limited to such as wanted to cover, and it required but moderate selling to give prices a downward inpetus. May opened at 8.01@8.02 and after remaining steady in the forencon, broke in the afternoon to 7.96. The close was steady with 7.96 bid for May. The bears expect that we shall see a gradual weakening of prices from now until notice day for March deliveries, when they predict a decided break. The outlook just now is certainly not encouraging, but cotton is a most uncertain article and is prone to indulge in unexpected freaks.

The Dry Goods Market.

New York, February 10.—The week opens with good weather conditions, a considerably better attendance of buyers in the dry goods market, fair expectations of an improving demand and with new prices made by agents on leading makes of bleached cottons. The latter factor ought to prove an important one. On previous occasions these periodicals changed in bleached cottons have often been precursors of an all-round extended business in staple cottons, and there is no doubt but that in conjunction with other influences the delay this season in revising prices has tended to retard business, Cotton dress fabrics have shown no material alteration, nor have the woolen and worsted goods departfents. gust. Prices naturally declined under the circumstances, although a partial recovery took place before the end of the session which was due rather to the taking by shorts of profits than to a renewal of confidence in values. The opening was at a decline from Saturday's close, large Black Sea shipments and lower Liverpool cables causing the weakness. After that the selling was continuous and persistent; and, whilst there was fair buying around 660 for May, it eventually proved inadequate to the offerings. May wheat opened from 60 to 60%c, sold between 60%/m/4 and 60%c, closing at 60%c, %0% under Saturday. Cash wheat was weak and it lower.

Saturday. Cash wheat was weak and ic lower.

News on corn was quite favorable today, and had it not been for the tendency of wheat to decline it is very probable an improvement in prices might have taken place. As it was, there was only a fractional loss. May corn opened at 30%, sold between 30%,20% and 30%c, closing at 30%c, a shade under Saturday. Cash corn was '4c per bushel lower.

A light business was transacted in oats. The action of the other grains was followed in a perfunctory manner. May oats closed '%c under Saturday. Cash oats were '4c per bushel lower.

Provisions.—Lower hog prices caused lower product values this morning. Some buying orders came on the market right at the opening, the effect of which was to cause a rally, but when they were executed dullness became the feature, and the weakness of wheat the influence. At the close May pork was 507%c under Saturday, May lard and ribs each 2½c lower. Domestic markets were quiet and easy.

Ch cago, February 10.—Wheat—A decidedly weak feeling prevailed during the early part of the session, the market selling 1½c lower than Saturday. Toward the close, however, the feeling became much firmer, advancing nearly 1c. From the opening till noon there was considerable long wheat pressing on the market, with little disposition on the part of scalpers or outs ders to make purchases. The general run of news rather favored the short side. Black sea shipments for the week have been shown a good increase, and it is estimated that the world's shipments will reach 6,000 000 bushels, against 4,500,000 last week. This evidently had a bearish effect on Liverpool, as that market closed ½d lower. Cables from the continent were unchanged. Receipts at Chicago for tomorrow are estimated at 350 cars, which suggests that perhaps a part of the large northwest deliveries are coming this way. The visible supply decreased 615,000 bushels, and the English visible 194,000 bushels, but the amount on passage increased 880,000 bushels. During the last hour, however, shorts became good buyers on reported sales of about 260,000 bushels. Cash wheat and a good demand for export at the seaboard; also on Howard Bartee's figures making a decrease of nearly 22,000,000 in the world's visible for January. Wheat has many friends, and the short seller who does not secure his profits on the sharp declines is liable to lose them. The potent factor, Ch cago, February 10.-Wheat-A decided-ly weak feeling prevailed during the early however, for the balance of the month will be the shipment from the Argentine and Baltic ports. Should these prove large, it will have a depressing effect on the market of other importing countries and will prevent any reliable advance.

Coarse grains have fluctuated within a narrow limit, closing about the same as Saturday. The visible supply of corn increased 198,000 bushels.

Prov sions were steady, but closed slightly lower. The Cudahy Packing Company was a moderate buyer of ribs, but was a seller of pork.

Grain Notes.

Chicago, February 10.—The Swedish storthing has passed a resolution placing import duties on all grains except corn.

The Mishigan state crop report for February says that wheat suffered no injury through January from any source. The amount of wheat marketed in January vas 397,000 bushels less than last January. Convict Lessees Put on Trial Before the Governor.

SENATORS ON THE STAND

Tell What They Saw on Their Visit to the Camps.

THE PROCESS OF "DUCKING"

Used as a Form of Punishment in Lieu of Whipping.

A NUMBER OF WITNESSES WERE EXAMINED

Quite an Array of Counsel Taking Part in the Case-Hammond and Adam. son Represent the State.

There seemed to be the promise of stirring things in the court for the trial of the convict lessees which began yesterday morning, Governor Atkinson presiding.

The promise did not wholly fail. There was no amazing revelation of evils in the camps, but some of the senators related things directly in line with the report made by the senate investigating committee last

The senators told what they saw at the camps. Some of the camps were unclean, they said; at one the convicts had no socks and but one suit of clothes; at others foul vessels were allowed to remain in sleeping rooms of the convicts for too long a time at Cole City the senators were told that "ducking" was used as a mathod of punish evinced an industrious disposition from the first. He held court from 11 until 2 o'clock yesterday continuously. Today there will be two sessions, the first beginning at 9 o'clock this morning.

The senators had no new stories to relate Their time at the camps seemed altogether too limited for full investigation and much of the information which the attorneys inquired for the senators could not give.

The court was one of great dignity. There was not a ripple to disturb the impressiveness of the occasion. There was quite an array of legal talent present. Colonel N. J. Hammond and W. C. Adamson were present as the attorneys for the state. Colonel John L. Hopkins represented W. B. Lowe; J. W. English appeared for himself, and Hamp McWhorter, Dave Meador and E. T. Shubrick represented Colonel James M. Smith. Mr. Julius L. Brown was represented by Ellis & Gray, Burton Smith, Bishop, Hill and Andrews.

There was a goodly sprinkling of spectators, senators, representatives and witnesses. Stenographers took the testimony for the state Attorney General Joe Terrell occupied a seat beside the governor.

The court will begin at 9 o'clock this

"The officials and the lessees of the state are not even given the same chances to defend themselves against charges made by criminals which the criminals themselves have before conviction. They are not furnished with copies of charges, names of witnesses and have no charges, names of witnesses and have no charges and to get the convicts under his care and keeping have in any manner whatever been ill treated. They are criminals convicted under the laws of the state and sent for safe-keeping and for punishment, and when they do control them except by mase where ome unruly there may be made to come unruly there were the time of the state and sent for safe-keeping and except the same where punishment are punishment and for what it was inflicted the character of the punishment and for what it was inflicted the character of the principal Keeper of the penitentiary. Prisoners must be made to work, or there is no difference between a convict and an honest man, no penalty put upon his crime unless he works, and unless the power of punishment be given, convicts would become unruly and would do no work. "Seventh, respondent denies emphatically and in toto that the convicts under his control have been half starved. Fespon dent has compiled strictly with the convicts much more than furnishment better fed than ordinary free laborers. As a matter of comparison it has completed the convicts and the source of the same and the convicts and the part of the soap needed at the mines cut of the excess of provisions furnished to convicts, which they do not convicts under its control, and their treatment has been officially approved, and in addition to that, respondent is feeding over 500 hogs and many head of cattle and making a large part of the soap needed at the mines cut of the excess of provisions furnished to convicts, which they do not converts under his repondent is feeding over 500 hogs and the scape mines, and the scapes mitch larger than from the convicts committed the penitentiary walls before the lease spenite his recei Judge Atkinson Takes His Seat. Looking trim and ruddy the governor entered the senate chamber promptly at 10 o'clock. He came in with Joe Terrell and walked up to the presiding officer's chair. Already Attorneys Adamson and Hammond had arrived, selected their desks and spread out their formidable array of papers. They out their formidable array of papers. They sat conferring. There were some fifty senators and other witnesses in the chamber. The lessees' attorneys were bunched on one side of the chamber.

The hum ceased when the governor said: "Come to order, gentlemen."

The governor suggested that the attorneys confer as to hours and they wanted the usual court hours. He thought the case should be pushed, as there were many winnesses from a distance present. He would proceed on that line.

Mr. McWhorter, for James M. Smith, ask-

Mr. Smith had malarial fever. The case was allowed to go over until Mr. Smith Outlined the State's Case.

The state proposed to present in evidence the contract between the lessees and the state, executive orders locating camps and the record of proceedings before Governor

Colonel Hammond showed how the convicts were divided. There were three camps. No. 1 comprised the camps of the Dade Coal Company; No. 2 comprised the Chattahoochee Brick Company and others, and No. 3 comprised the Chattahoochee Brick Company and others. James M. Smith has several camps in No. 3.

at Cole City and thereabouts. Mr. Brown read the answer, punctuating such points as he wished to make with emphatic interlineations. He stated that since appointed receiver, over a year ago, he has had charge of the convicts.

He takes up the charges thus:

"Said Julius L. Brown, as receiver and president, is at a loss which of the charges to answer. The charges contained in said order are those made in the senate committee's report and the house committee's report upon pages 2 and 7 of said printed order. These two reports are in direct conflict with each other, and respondent doth not know whether the said commanies are to be tried under the senate committee's report. for political effect. They take a printed list of 'convicts, which is ordinarily found in the principal keeper's report, go into the camps, single out convicts who are from their counties, take them off quietly and hear their complaints. It developed that he knew but little about the treatment of convicts. The work of the penitentiary committee had been performed by subcommittees and he had made up his report from these reports. He had the originals of the reports of the subcommittees. He gave the names of the second ees. He gave the names of the senators who had visited the several camps.

the subcommittee reports were in?"

"Did you make your report immediately?" "No, I had a memorandum of what I whiled to note. Senator Sanford asked me for the twice before I could furnish it." A Shadow in Camp.

The senator told of a young white convict, who on his first visit, a year before, he had found to be hale and hearty and strong. On the last the young man, whose name was Willis, and whose home was in Terrell county, was terribly emaciated and covered with sores. He inquired of the physician if working under ground did not induce scrofula, and was told that it

What Senator Brown Saw.

Senator Brown saw a good many things at Cole City. He examined the cooking and commissary departments. He saw the pieces of meat that were issued to the convicts daily. He estimated their weight at a half pound. The bread looked as if the meal had been cooked without sifting.

HARMONY REIGNS.

The City Executive Committee Organized for Business Last Night.

CHAIRMAN F. P. RICE ELECTED

Every One Surprised by the Withdrawal of the Contest in the Third,

LEAVING THE COMMITTEE AS NAMED

The Contest in the Third Ward Would Have Been Offset by One in the Seventh.

The spirit of harmony presided over he meeting of the city executive committee last night and the basement of the courthouse, instead of being a storm center of debate and strife, as every one expected, presented a picture of tranquillity.

Notwithstanding the placid nature of the meeting, however, a storm was narrowly everted. Every one expected to see the sparks fly and when the crash failed to ome and the meeting adjourned in good order every one was surprised. As soon as the meeting was organized by the election of a temporary chairman it was anounced that contesting delegations from two important wards in the city, would submit their credentials to the body. This promised something of a sensation. Be fore the meeting adjourned, however, both delegations withdrew from the contest and the spirit of democratic harmony reigned

The following is the membership of the committee as shown by the credentials submitted to the meeting last night: First Ward-W. A. Fincher, W. H. Brotherton, J. C. Huff and M. P. Camp. Second Ward-Dr. P. E. Murray, C. G. Hannah, F. M. Potts and Joseph F.

meeting with the result that a larger number seemed to vote in the negative. The chairman refused to put he call for a division and adjourned the meeting. Immediately thereafter those who had voted in the negative held a separate meeting, with Amos Baker as chairman and Clarance Moore as secretary. This meeting elected A. J. Shropsh're, S. W. Day, R. P. Dodge and T. L. Bishop delegates and issued credentials accordingly.

Affldavits showing that fraud was practiced at the meeting and that several illegal votes were cast were read from C. P. Cothran and A. L. Day.

As soon as this communication was read Mr. Joseph F. Gatins gave notice of a contest which he proposed to make against the delegates from the seventh ward.

Some one objected to investigating both contests at the same time, but it was the sense of the meeting that all contests be considered at one and the same time to avoid delay.

Before the grounds for disputing the vote in the seventh ward could be made Dr. P. E. Murray moved a reconsideration

Before the grounds for disputing the vote in the seventh ward could be made Dr. P. E. Murray moved a reconsideration of the motion to submit the issues between the opposing delegations to a committee consisting of the uncontested delegates. The motion to reconsider was carried. Dr. Marray then proposed is a substitute that a committee of five be appointed for the purpose of investigating the contested claims. This would insure the best results and would moreover save time.

Harmony Restored.

Harmony Restored.

It begas to look as if a stubborn fight was on. Just at this juncture, however, Mr. T. L. Bishon, a member of the contesting delegation, arose and stated that he wished to withdraw the contest in the interest of harmony. His purpose was not so much to oust the other side as to show that fraud and dishonesty had been practiced in the election. Having dane this he asked for the privilege of withdrawing the contest. Since the delegates from the third ward were left immolested Mr. Gatins promptly withdraw his contest of the election in the seventh ward, thus equalizing matters and restoring harmony. The meeting then adjourned.

He saw two convicts at the camp poorly clad. He had called nobody's attention to it. The men's arms were exposed, and the clothing seemed altogether insufficient. Mr. Smith tried to get at something definite about the poorly clad prisoners. "As the senator went there to gain information," said he, "we would like to have the benefit of what he got, not what he can get." Senator Brown was unable to identify the men in any way.

Some of the prison bedding was in bad condition. It was very filthy. Some seemed dusty. This applied to the blankets and bed ticking. He went into the mines. It was dark, and the atmosphere was very damp on account of water. Each man worked by a light on his cap. In most places the convicis could not stand upright while they worked. He could not see very well, it was so dark. He walked through the tunnel and did not have to stoop, although he is above medium height. He did not consider the bedding of the convicts as good as that used by the ordinary day laborer. The committee had eaten a meal at the camp, and found it rather wholesome. He was asked if they had anything to drink. He said they had coffee.

"Yes, the day before the report was made. There were two or three more than a quorum present. Senator Bush moved to strike out the word 'shameful' and Senator Tatum moved to substitute 'absolutely shameful.'"
"You did not call the lessess before you to give them hearing on these grave charges?"

"Certainly not," said the senator with spirit. "We had no authority." He Went to Coal City. Senator Monroe, a vigorous looking sen ator with clear cheeks, was put on the stand. He went to Cole City and Crawfish Springs. He was asked about ducking at these camps. He said he had heard of it, although he had not seen it, at Cole "What is ducking, senator?" asked the state's attorney.

"Why, they lay a man flat of his back and shoot water up his nostrils. They keep it up until he succumbs." They keep it up until he succumbs."
Upon questions from Mr. Smith, the senator stated that Captain Ed Cox was his informant. He said that the experience was one a man would not soon forget. "Did not Mr. Cox give it as his opinion that ducking was more humane whipping?" asked Mr. Smith.

"Yes." "Is it not true that the camp at Cole City is made up of long-term, desperate "Yes, I heard of a great many trying to escape."

"How long were you there?" "Several nours at Cole City. When 1 first got there I went through the mines. I was told that the men were given threequarters of a pound of meat a day and vegetables, such as turnips and Irish pota-toes. At certain times they are given beef. I am satisfied the men are well fed. One fellow told me he got enough, such as it was. I went to the tailoring department; they had a record there of the number of suits of clothing issued, and it seemed that the men were given clothing enough. I got a statement as to the shoes, and the men seemed to be well provided in that respect. I went to the hospital; that was all right."

He was questioned as to the comparison between the labor in the mines and free labor in the open air.

He said the mine work was harder and much less cleanly. Some of the men had extra clothing. Captain Cox showed him outfits of extra clothing which some of the men had. He did not remember whether any of them wore socks or not. He was not present when the general report of the senate committee was adopted, but had read it hurriedly previous to its adoption.

"How long before adjournment was it before you went to the camps?" asked Mr. Smith.

"You mean on the table?" said he.

"I mean anywhere."

"There was some brandy of Captain Cox's—appie brandy, I believe."

"It was fust an instance of one gentleman giving another a drink, wasn't it?" asked Mr. Smith. "It is customary, I believe, for gentlemen to drink with each other, isn't it, senator?"

"It's very frequent among members of the legislature," said the senator. Governor Atkinson closed the examination of Senator Brown by asking some questions about the convicts who were poorly clad. Senator Brown was able to give no more definite information.

He Lives Near the Camps. Senator Tatum, of Dade, was called. He was not a member of the senate committee, but he lives in seven miles of Cole City. in good condition.

He knew nothing of the punishment called ducking.

Senator Baldy Ryals knew something about ducking. He heard about it at Cole City. He was told there that ducking was regarded as a great deal better than whipping. He described the process, pretty much as Senator Monroe had described it. He went down into the mines, but could not tell whether the convicts were standing upright while they worked or not. He visited the camps at the Chattahoochee brick camps. He did not think the bunks were wide enough for two men to sleep on. He went also to Camp Bartow, and found that convicts there had only one suit of clothes each. The captain told him that Some of them had scarcely any shoes at all. The men had no socks. Senator Wilcox, of the fifteenth, visited some of the south Georgia camps. He stated before the court that he had found the grounds at Mineola in good condition. There was a decaying hog near the convicts' sleeping quarters. The whites and colored all slept in the same room. He could not tell how far apart, but certainly not very far. Amoskeag he found in fair condition. Unclean vessels were allowed to remain in the sleeping rooms a night or two at a time.

The Last Witness.

Representative Farmer, of Coweta, was the last witness examined before the close of the day's session. He went to the camp at Maxwells, and found cause for grave complaint. The sleeping quarters were built of upright logs, split. There were wide cracks between the logs. Some of the men had colds. He had asked the captain about it, and the captain had showed him some blankets which they used over the cracks. The convicts slept with their heads to the wall. The camp at Toledo, which he visited, was built of very small pine logs. The sleeping quarters had a dirt floor, six inches deep in sand, however. There was a very bad odor in the sleeping stockade. The captain had assured him that the camp would be all right. The Last Witness.

Representative Farmer came down at 2 o'clock, and Governor Atkinson adjourned the court. He announced that two sessions would be held today. All the witnesses examined yesterday were dismissed, except Senator Sanford. He will remain to assist Colonels Adamson and Hammond in the ed, except Senator Sanford. He will remain to assist Colonels Adamson and Hammond in the prosecution.

A great many witnesses remain to be examined. The inquiry will probably proceed with the investigation of members of the house and senate committees all day.

Where Woman Is Never a Criminal. In Austria a woman, no matter what she may do, is never regarded or treated quite as a criminal. She may rob, burn, killset every law at defiance, in fact, and break commandments in turn-without a fear of ever being called upon to face a gallows. She is not even sent to an ordinary ison to do penance for her sins; th hardest fate that can befall her, indeed, for a time in a convent. The convent to which Vienna sends its erring sisters is at only a few miles away from The convent itself is a fine old building which once upon a time was a castle and seems to have been strongly fortified. The religious community to which it now belongs received it as a present from its owner, who cared more for the church than for his heir. There is nothing in the appearance of the place to show that it is a prison; the courtyard stands open the whole day long and there is never a pretty little nun whom a strong woman could easily pick up in her arms and ru with keen, penetrating eyes, a firm mouth and expression that is at once kind-ly and-oddly enough, considering she is a -humorous. She has a gentle courtesy of manner that is singularly attractive she has, too, that most excellent thing in woman, a low, sweet voice. Judging by the stately grace with which she wears her long, cream-white robes, her early days were more probably passed at Hofburg than in a convent. The fact of her being a great lady, however, does not prevent her being a clear-headed business woman. She has at her finger-ends all the details of the working of the institution under her control, and not a spoon is moved there without her knowing the whys and where fores of its moving. She is evidently heart and soul in her work and keenly interested in everything that concerns her charges. She knows all the circumstances of their She knows all the circumstances of their cases and deals with each of them individ-

The superior led the way into a large cheerful-looking room in which some fifty women were sitting working. Perhaps half a dozen of them were making match boxes or buttons, and the others were doing fine needle work, embroidery, lace and wool work, under the guidance of a sister who looked for all the world as if she had stepped straight out of Fra Angelico's pic-tures. She passes her life going about among these women distributing to each in turn directions, encouragement or reproof, as the case may be, always with a smile on her lips—one, though, in which there is more patient endurance than gladness. Another sister, a woman with a strong, phinxlike the room on a raised platform. "Done," the inspector replied grimly, "set a house on fire with the hope of dren." The girl must have had extraordinary sharp ears, for although we were standing at some distance away, she heard what he said, and she gave him a glance such as I hope never to see again in my life. It was absolutely diabolic; had there been a knife within reach the man would have died on the spot. Yet only a moment ore she had been looking up into my face with a smile an angel might have

LaGrange, Ga., February S.—(Special.)—Promptly at the appointed time, the Young Matrons' Club met at the home of Mrs. W. A. Reid, on last Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. B. G. Swanson, being providentially absent, Mrs. J. P. Anderson presided most creditably. Quotations were promiscuous, and a short programme was rendered. The recitation of the "Heart's Ease" by Mrs. R. H. Buckley, and the reading by Miss Dora Freeman well deserved especial mention. Mrs. Buckley's style is captivating, and in this piece she was at her best. Miss Freeman prefaced her remarks by asking the club in her most dignified manner, please not to misconstrue her motive, for nothing personal was meant when she announced her subject, "Cats and Dogs." After the programme the president relaxed her discipline, and a short time was spent in social conversation. The sex is occasionally accused of talking too much, and it seemed this time that, having that reputation, they were determined to deserve it; but, strange as it may seem, no one suffered thereby. The genial hostess lead the way to the dining room, where it seemed a good fairy had waved her wand over the seene. Violets, those mouses hear howers, were lavishly used in the decorations, and hyacinths with their tiny bells suggesting, if such a thing could be imagined, sweet-scented chimes. A custom prevalis that each member, when convenient, shall present the hostess with an offering of flowers on club days, to be used by her in the decorations, and afterwards sent to absent sick members, if there should be any, or to the sick in the city. Flowers, like music, certainly do have a grand mission, and they fill it well. Maude Andrews has said that she once heard of a man over whom the odor of the little yellow jasmine exerted such an influence as to make him willing to kiss his mother-in-law. One has remarked that true talent often ites "perdu" for lack of an incentive to perfect it, and that a motive only is wanting to bring it forth from under the proverbial bushel. Now, this proves to be sound philosophy, for our matrons can testify to the fact that but for this club the proverbial bushel. Now, this proves to be sound ph losophy, for our matrons can testify to the fact that but for this club of theirs, their ingers might have become stiff, their voices faint and their memories dimmed from disease. As a social factor, it has been pleasant in every particular, welding old links and forging new ones in friendship's chain. For these very reasons, if there were no others, it ought to be perpetuated. Cordial adieus were exchanged, and another happy occasion scored for the club.

Misses Annie Robertson and Louise Wimbish, of Greenville, granddaughters of Hon. Henry R. Harris, and graduates of the LaGrange female college, visited their uncle, Mr. T. A. Atkinson, this week. These young ladies are great favorites here in their old home, and their friends very much regret the brevity of their visit.

NORMAL SCHOOL NEEDED.

CAPTAIN HENDRIX'S SUGGESTION GROWING IN FAVOR.

Mr. Burgess Smith, the Secretary of the Board of Education, Has Something To Say.

Mr. Burgess Smith, the secretary of the board of education, is strongly in favor of the plan suggested by Captain J. C. Hendrix for organizing a normal school in At-

"A normal school is just what is needed in the public school system. In the schools of this city there are many bright young teachers who are well qualified to give in struction but who are sadly deficient in dis-ciplinary qualities. What is needed by these teachers is not so much the knowledge of textbooks as the knowledge of how to govern; or, in other words, practical discip-line. Should this normal school be established on the plan suggested by Captain Hendrix, if he is properly quoted in the papers, it would tend to produce uniformi-ty in the methods of instruction as well as in the discipline by which the schools are governed. It is bad enough to change teachers from year to year as the pupil advances from one grade to another; it is much worse, in my judgment, to pass from one method of teaching to another and to suffer the injury that is brought about by so many unstable and fluctuating ideas as to how a pupil ought to be taught. Much time is lost by this change in the habits which a pupil has formed during the year and much injury is done. For this reason I believe in uniform and practical methods of instruction. Some of the teachers in the public schools are lacking in method, some in discipline. Such teachers should be al-lowed to visit the other schools of the city and especially the corresponding grades for the purpose of finding out wherein their own deficiencies lie and in what the suc-cess of other teachers consists. This can be easly done under the normal school plan. Whenever a teacher finds it necessary to visit one of the schools an appli cant from the normal school, who is supposed to be training for a teacher, can take her place. If I understand the proposition suggested by Captain Hendrix I am hear tily in favor of the change."

The plan of captain Hendrix is to organ ize a normal school for the training of teachers and to fill all vacancies in the public schools of Atlanta from the list of applicants in this normal school. The training to be derived from this school will be practical training, the design being to thoroughly equip teachers for the public schools of the city. Before a candidate can enter the normal school he or she must first stand a preliminary examination and enter the normal school he or she must first stand a preliminary examination and also be elected by the board of education. Before a vacancy is filled in the public schools the teachers elected must be qualified in the broadest sense of that expression. In order to secure such teachers Captain Hendrix has conceived the idea of establishing a normal school in Atlanta. The matter will come up at the next meeting of the board of education. Captain Hendrix has several other important matters to bring before the board, growing out of a resolution by him at the last meeting to devise some improved method of grading and selecting teachers.

WORK OF THE BOARD

A Pardon Was Yesterday Asked for Jim Carnes, Charged with Burglary.

REPORT TO BE MADE

After a Careful Inspection of the Penitentiary Camps the Committee Will Report Favorably.

The joint pardon committee appointed from the house and the senate to investigate the condition of the convict camps of the state held a meeting yesterday morning and presented a recommendation for the pardon of Jim Carter, a young white boy who was sent up from Appling county. The session of the confmittee yesterday was short and but little business was transacted. The committee has just com-several days this week.

Jim Carter was sent up from Appling county on the charge of burglary and he was given a sentence of three years. Most of the sentence has been served and the young man will be given his liberty in a few months on account of the expira-tion of the sentence, in case he is refused a pardon by Governor Atkinson.

pleted a tour of the camps of the southern

Though the work of the committee will not detain it through the entire week, it is probable that all of the members will remain in the city, as they expect to be witnesses in the investigation of the peni-tentiary camps which is now being con-ducted by the governor and the legislative committees. When the committee started out on its tour of inspection it was instructed by the governor to look carefully into every camp and see just what was the exact condition of the camp; the manner in which the convicts were treated and the methods and rules used in the conduct of the camp. These instructions the committee says it has fol-lowed minutely and a notebook was carried along on the trip and everything was dotted down just as it appeared to the mem-

In nearly every camp the committee was well pleased with what they saw and what they learned from the lips of the convicts. The prisoners told the members that they were well treated and received good food and slept in comfortable quarters. Some of the convicts stated that they were treated better than they would have been were they at their own homes, and they gave a good report of the discipline and reconstitute of the compare.

There was a complaint filed by the committee on account of the absence of stoves at the camp in Worth county, which is conducted by Mr. James Smith. The committee reported that the camp was about as well kept as any with the exception that no stoves were used, and instead the fires were built in open fireplaces and the

that no stoves were used, and instead the fires were built in open fireplaces and the smoke from these fires was disagreeable and not in keeping with the laws and regulations of the state in regard to the management of the penitentiaries. The matter was laid before the attention of the captains of the camps and they were instructed to get stoves into position at once. The captains promised to secure the stoves and abandon the use of open fireplaces.

With the committee the principal keeper of the penitentiary went and all were satisfied with the manner in which the convicts were managed and worked. The hours for work and the food and shelter afforded were found to be humane and just, and the committee will make a favorable report to the governor in a few days.

"I have been agreeably surprised at most all of the camps which we, as a committee, visited. In nearly every instance I found that the convicts were treated with much consideration. When one was sick, his case was examined by a doctor and he was not required to work if his condition was in the least unfavorable. Desiring to see the camps just as they are conducted every day in the week, we did not have our coming announced, but just dropped in at the camps unexpectedly. All the convicts told us that they were well fed and had no complaint to make. There are just one or two exceptions to the statements made us by the convicts. I remember in one or two places we were told that they did not receive enough to eat. But then made us by the convicts. I remember in one or two places we were told that they did not receive enough to eat. But then the word of a convict must be taken with much care, as a convict is a convict and it is taken for granted that he is a criminal or he would not be in the camp."

Mr. Jenkins, from Putnam, one of the committee of investigation, said that the work of the committee had been carefully and conscientiously carried out and they had done their duty just as far as they possibly could.

WHISKY AND DEATH

Musician Froggitt Got Drunk at a Wedding and Died.

FOUND IN HIS BED YESTERDAY

Froggitt Hauled from a Marriage Feast Celebration and Put to Bed, Dying During Sunday Night,

In his bed at the Mull house, on Ivy street, his body stiff and rigid in death. George W. Froggitt, a musician, was found at 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning. It appears that Froggitt's death resulted from his drinking about a quart of wine and liquor Sunday night. He was hauled to his room and chucked in bed in a woeful state of intoxication at midnight Sun-

Froggitt was a trombone player at the exposition grounds during the show and later at two of the theaters in the city. He came here in September and began work in the Trocadero orchestra at the grounds. Afterwards he worked at other amusement places on the Midway and later secured a position at the Imperial theater on Deca-tur street. He then worked for the City Trocadero. His home was formerly in Brooklyn and he is said to have lived with a sister at that place.

Froggitt died a pauper. His body will probably be buried in the paupers' field. He was forty-two years old and was an habitual drinker when he had money. It is thought that he has a wife living, but her address is not known. He was born in London and came to America about thir-teen years ago, stopping in Brooklyn, where he resided for some time, following his musical profession at some of the concert halls and amusement houses at that place. He last worked for Leader William Ferris on Fifth avenue, Brooklyn.

Mull Wanted the Trombone. For several weeks Froggitt was out of work and he became moneyless. He roomed at the Mull house and left an unpaid bill there, which brought about an issue be-tween Coroner Paden and Proprietor Mull during an inquest held over the dead body of the musician yesterday afternoon. The coroner stated that it was his duty to take charge of Froggitt's trombone, the only property he had in the world, which brought forth the suggestion from Mull that he was entitled to the instrument for that he was entitled to the instrument for the room rent due by the musician.

Coroner Paden stated that he would be compelled to take the instrument and later in the afternoon he secured it from the Mull house. It appears that the trombone was removed from the dead man's room yesterday morning. Whether Proprietor Mull will attach the instrument is not known. He stated that he had a right to hold it. It appears from the testimony of witnesses that Froggitt had no money and but for the generosity of a restaurant keep-er on Decatur street he often would have had to go without food.

Got Drunk at the Wedding. Sunday night Froggitt and several other musicians were engaged to play at a Jewish wedding on Brotherton street. During the evening the guests were entertained with a supper and refreshments and the members of the orchestra were invited to participate While at the supper table Froggitt par-took of a glassful of wine and whisky mixed, and after each tune played by the band he called for something to drink. The hosts were very hospitable and no re-straint was put on any of the guests and members of the orchestra, the consequences being that when the gathering broke up Froggitt was perfectly drunk. One of the musicians testified that he must have drunk about a quart of intoxicants during the eveni Put in His Red

Charles Adamson, a musician of 96 Terry street, left the house with his friend, Froggitt, and started toward Whitehall street with him. When in the street Froggitt suddenly collapsed and almost fell to the street, limber and limp from the excessive use of spirits. After a while Adamson finally got Froggitt in a hack and hauled him to the Mull house, at the corner of Edgewood avenue and Ivy street. The drunken musician was carried into the house and upstairs to his room by Adamson and two negroes. Proprietor Mull saw the musician in his bed and after the man was partially undressed he was left apparently in a drunken stupor in the room with Walter Mason, an English friend of his.

Found His Friend Dead. Mason was asleep when the man was put to bed but he awoke from the noise made by the men and after looking at Froggitt went to his own bed in the room and went to sleep. That was the last seen of Frog-gitt alive. Yesterday morning when he got up Mason went to Frogritt's bed and at-tempted to awake him. Taking hold of the man's hand he was startled to find it very cold and stiff and he quickly turned the head of his friend and found that his fears for the worst were true. Frogritt fears for the worst were true. Froggitt lay still in death. Quickly giving the alumn the boarding house inmates were aroused by Mason and the police and Coroner Pa-

There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. mouth, strangling him. That suggestion appeared worthy of consideration and the coroner's jury and County Physician McDaniel gave it credence, although the verdict reached was to the effect that Froggitt's death resulted from acute alcoholism. The county physician and jury made a thorough examination of the body and found no evidence of violence on it.

Will Hold the Body. The body of the dead music.an was turned over to Undertaker Patterson and he is en-deavoring to locate the relatives and friends of Froggitt. The remains will be held out of a paupers' grave as long as possible if it appears that there is any chance of his friends giving the body a decent burial.

AUBRECHT'S SUICIDE AGAIN.

Miss Baker, of St. Louis, Desires Information About the Spieler. Undertaker Patterson yesterday received letter signed by Miss Katie Baker, of St. Louis, giving her address as the Hotel Ord, Ninth and Chestnut streets, that city, making irquiry regarding the death of Joseph Aubrecht, the Midway spieler who committed suicide last November during the exposition. It appears that Miss Baker was a friend to the spieler and has just heard of his death. She desires the particulars of the case and information as to the disposition of the body of the dead man.

Aubrecht killed himself in a fit of despondency caused by an unhappy love affair. He ardently admired a beauty on the Midway and being repulsed grew desperate and one night ended his unhappiness by swallowing a large quantity. one night ended his unhappiness by swal lowing a large quantity of morphine. Hi body was held out of a pauper's grave fo some time, in the hope that some of his former friends would subscribe for a decen burial of it. The case excited considerable interest at the time. The Location of the New Jail Will Be Finally Settled Today.

PRYOR ST. CITIZENS TO MEET

The Meeting Will Be Held in the County Commissioners' Office in the Courthouse Annex .

The location of the new Fulton county jail be will be finally decided upon this morning by the county commissioners. The meeting which has been called for by the citizens of Pryor street will be held at 10 o'clock, in the office of the commissioners in the annex of the courthouse, and a very large and representative attendance is expected. The citizens of that street have not announced what has been accomplished since the last meeting, but it has been said that they will be out in force and will present many arguments and reasons against the location of the new prison at the site re-cently selected. They will ask that the jall be either erected on the ground which it now occupies or that the county buy prop-erty in another part of the city and place the jail as far remote from Pryor street as

When the citizens have been heard from it is more than probable that the commissioners will state that since the county has purchased the courthouse lot and has already expended quite a large amount of money with a view of erecting the building, the protests have been filed too late and that the jail will be made an annex to the courthouse. Though this final decision has not been given out by the commissioners, it is stated on good authority that the protests and petition presented by the citizens will have but little effect on the final action of the board.

The commissioners insist that all have had due notice of the contemplated im-provement; that the fact that a jail was to be erected adjoining the courthouse had been published in the daily papers and much publicity had been given the matter. since this ample notice has been made pub lic they feel that those who are interested in Pryor street should have taken action earlier and saved the delay that has been occasioned in the last few days.

A member of the building committee stated yesterday that the location had practically been decided upon several weeks ago, but just as work was almost ready to start the kicks and protests began to pour in and the commissioners found they were Forrest Adair, "and I don't see how any-one can say we have failed to discharge our duty. Every one understands that a jail is not wanted in any neighborhood, and it was on this account that we determined to place it where it would do the least possible harm. I would not favor the erection of a jail in a residence portion of the city; that would not do. Then the next best thing we could do was to build it in the center of the city. The courthouse selection, I think, is especially happy, as the jail building will not be seen at all and no one would know of its location unless he took the trouble to search for it.

"When the jail is completed and the courthouse is finished I do not think there will be any objection. We have done just what we would have wished others to do and I can assure you that we have had the best interests of the city and county at heart."

The Committee Leaves Today.

Mr. Forrest Adair and Mr. Walter Brown of the building committee, accompanied by Mr. Grant Wilkins, the newly elected superintendent of construction, will leave this afternoon at 4:20 o'clock on the Atlanta and West Point vestibule for a trip through the principal cities of the north and east. The party will be absent sixteen days.

When the committee returns it will bring back a report of the jails of these cities. As soon as the plans can be made bids for the building will be asked for and in a few weeks the workmen will begin the foundations for the structure. The plans and material to be used in the building have not been decided upon. Much will depend upon what is seen and learned by the committee. The cities to be visited are New Orleans, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Buffalo, Harrisburg, Baltimore, Columbus, Montreal, Cleveland, Sing Sing and probably other cities where modern jails have been erected. of the building committee, accompanied by

This afternoon the bill will be a double one—"A French Marriage," a delightful comedy, will be the first portion of the bill, to be followed by two acts of "Ingomar." Parthenia is one of the strong roles of Miss Blair and the part of Ingomar is well suited to Mr. Downing.

Tonight the engagement will conclude with a benefit performance of "Damon and Pythias." This is given under the auspices of the local lodge of Knights of Pythias and will doubtless be largely attended and prove a delightful affair.

Decisions Rendered Monday, February

REPORTED FOR THIS PAPER

By Peeples and Stevens, Reporters of the Supreme Court of the State of Georgia.

Duggan v. Harrison. Before Judge Gamble. Washington superior court. Lumokin, J.—Where a testator, after making in his will several specific bequests, disposed of all his land and other property which might remain after the settlement of those bequests, in the following words: "I give and bequeath (the land, etc.) to my five children that remain with me, to-wit: (here designating by name five persons, including his executor and executrix) to have and to hold in common for a home and support so long as they remain together. Should any one or more leave, they can take such as is given them individually in this will, but have no share or control of this that is given in common, without the consent and signature of those that remain on the place. No one or more shall sell, lease, rent or in any way convey to any other than those that remain on the place, without the signature of the five named in this item." Held, that whatever may be the interest of one of these devisees, a daughter of the testator, either in the realty itself or in its income during a period of many years while she was absent from the land, and the other four remained upon and used and enjoyed the same in common, she is not entitled to maintain in the court of ordinary a petition to require the executor and executrix, as such, to make a return of the rents, issues and profits of the land during the time of her absence.

Lawhorn v. The Millen and Southern Railway Company. Before Judge Smith. Emanuel superior court. Simmons, C. J.—I. Even if a train employe who by reason of his having full knowledge that the track of the railroad was in a dangerously defective condition and had so remained for a considerable period can be held to have thereby assumed all risks of injury necessarily incident to riding, while engaged in his work, upon a train when being run in the usual manner and at the usual rate of speed, yet where upon a given occasion he was injured by a derailment of a car upon which he was riding in the due course of his employment, and on the trial of an action against the railroad company for the injury thus sustained proved affirmatively that the train at the time of the injury was being run at a dangerous rate of speed around a sharp curve, it was at least incumbent on the defendant to show that such a rate of speed at the point in question did not exceed that at which the train had usually been run at this place.

Lumpkin, J.—The act of September 23, 1833, as amended by the act of October 16, 1891, requiring defenses to actions in justices' courts upon unconditional contracts in writing to be made at the first term, is not applicable to a suit like the present, upon a written contract which is not unconditional; and consequently, though the defendant made no appearance or defense in the justice's court, and a judgment was therein rendered against him by default, he was not cut off from entering an appeal to the superior court, nor from making his defense in the latter court, it appearing that, in compliance with the act of October 15, 1885, he offered, before the case proceeded to trial on the appeal to reduce his defense to writing, and it also appearing that the amount for which the suit was brought exceeded $50.

*Lumpkin, J.—According to the decisions of this court in the cases of Frost v. Allen, 57 Ga. 326, and Holliday v. Lowry Banking Company, 92 Ga. 675, the instrument involved in this case was a mortgage, and not a deed; and though, under the allegations of the petition, the mortgage was infected with usury, it was not thereby rendered absolutely void, and the exercise of the power of sale therein contained could not, upon that ground alone, be legally enjoined. The court, therefore, committed no error in requiring, as a condition precedent to the granting of an injunction, that the debtor should pay the principal and legal interest of a debt secured by such mortgage.
